

No Acid on Sunday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver church will swing tonight with the way-out sights and sounds of Vancouver's first psychedelic service. Combining electronic music, swirling lights, go-go girls and poetry readings, the unique religious experiments is billed by its clerical co-sponsors as "a trip without acid."

Acid is slang for the psychedelic, or mind-expanding, drug LSD. The CBC will video-tape tonight's service at the University Hill United Church for presentation on the "Sunday" program. The service is the project of the Rev. Harold Mackay of University Hill and Rev. Jim McKibbin of St. Andrew's Anglican Church.

"We're trying to demonstrate you can have a trip without acid," said Mr. McKibbin. He emphasized that the service is a liturgical experiment and not intended as a gimmick. "I'm concerned in unlocking people so that they might be free and more open to this world."

CANADA SHUFFLING UP TO MAO'S DOOR

Pearson

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada will consider formal recognition of Red China if attempts to get that country into the United Nations fail, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday night.

"It may not only be a question of Canada recognizing Communist China, it may be a question of Communist China recognizing Canada," he said in a major foreign policy statement.

Earlier in the day Mr. Pearson nodded affirmatively when New Democrat Frank Howard (Skeena) asked:

"Would this government be willing to approach the government of the Peoples' Republic of China to see whether we might not have a two-China policy in so far as the exchange of diplomats between ourselves and that country is concerned?"

The prime minister's statement—particularly the vigor with which he made it—seemed to go closer than ever before to announcing a policy of recognition of the Communist regime.

It came at the end of his speech in reply to a question from New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Pearson said Canada could recognize China in one of two ways: voting for her admission to the United Nations, or bilateral negotiation.

"If this is impossible at present (in the UN) and we make no progress on this score, then we have to consider the other form of recognition," he said. "That is all I should like to say about it at the present time."

However it could still be at least a year before recognition of Mao Tse-tung's regime takes place, because it could be that long before the UN disposes of an Italian suggestion to set up a special committee to study the problem.

It is understood Canada will vote for the Italian resolution if another more progressive one does not appear to have a chance of being adopted.

'Playing Politics'

Mayor's Move Splits Grits

By JACK PEY
Legislative Reporter

B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault Thursday accused Vancouver Mayor Bill Rathie of playing politics in publicly supporting Attorney General Robert Bonner in Monday's by-election in the Cariboo. (See also Page 6).

Mr. Rathie, Liberal candidate who was defeated by Mr. Bonner in Vancouver Point Grey in the 1963 general election, Wednesday sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, urging Cariboo voters to support Mr. Bonner in next week's by-election.

Peking Rejects Canada's Plan

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China rejected today Canada's two-China proposal to seat Peking in the United Nations. Under the Canadian plan Nationalist China would remain in the UN.

"This is nothing but a revival of the U.S. imperialist plot to create two Chinas and such a plot will never succeed," said Peking in the official party newspaper, People's Daily, in an editorial.

Plane Crash Toll Remains Mystery

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Bulgarian airliner made an unscheduled landing in foul weather at Bratislava Thursday and then crashed at dusk in the fog-shrouded Carpathians soon after takeoff on an attempt to resume its flight, the CTK news agency reported.

The Czechoslovak agency at first said there were 84 persons aboard and no survivors but later reported an unknown number of passengers were believed to have stayed in Bratislava rather than risk the flight on to East Berlin.

Unconfirmed reports said the passengers were mostly Hungarians but that there was also a Frenchman and one German citizen and apparently some Czechoslovaks.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known but flight conditions along the route were unfavorable.

Czechoslovak authorities said the only immediately available copy of the passenger list was unreadable.

Unconfirmed reports in Vienna said an East European ambassador to East Germany and a Bulgarian opera singer were among the victims.

The Soviet-made Ilyushin-12 turboprop was reported on a regular flight from Sofia to East Berlin, via Budapest and Prague when it landed at Bratislava airport.

Airline's Offer Put to 5,200

MONTREAL (CP)—Tentative agreement on a new labor contract was reached Thursday between Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists, whose members have been on strike since Nov. 14.

The settlement, details of which are being withheld, will be put to a vote of the 5,200 strikers during the weekend.

Air Canada said in a statement that, if the settlement is accepted, air services will begin within 48 hours.

Jordan's King Beefs Forces, Accepts Help

BEIRUT (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan began a massive military buildup against Israeli "aggression" Thursday in the face of attacks from neighboring Arab socialist states and bubbling unrest at home.

While reports in Beirut predicted fresh disturbances inside Jordan against Hussein's current policies which socialist Arab states have branded as soft toward Israel, the youthful monarch:

● Announced a draft of all men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster Jordan's army of 68,000 men against Israel's massive forces which can total 265,000 backed by 350 planes and 600 tanks almost overnight. The draft was described as "temporary."

● Accepted an offer of 20,000 fighting men from King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a fellow Arab monarch whose policies have been denounced by Arab socialist states almost as viciously as Hussein's.

● Ordered his high command to set up immediate

Egypt 'Grabs' Ford

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian customs administration Thursday seized all property and funds of the Ford Motor Company in this country.

The move followed a decision by the Arab League to boycott Ford, Coca-Cola and other American companies trading with Israel.

The customs administration charged that Ford had refused to pay duties amounting to $1,500,000 on automobiles sold on the local market.

The customs authorities said Ford plants here were meant to produce for export only and that any local sales had to meet Egyptian customs requirements.

Jordan Hit By Nasser

CAIRO (UPI) — President Nasser Thursday assailed Jordan for its failure to arm its citizens near the border with Israel to protect themselves from possible future attacks by Israeli troops like the one early this month. He also reaffirmed that his nation and its allies would choose the time and place for the decisive battle with Israel.

500 Fund Grows

Enough for Tree, Now Trimmings

The 500 neediest families in the Greater Victoria area Thursday were assured of at least an additional $2.36 to buy Christmas "extras."

Those "extras" are the things which everyone except people on welfare, sick or without jobs are now planning to buy for a happy Christmas with their families.

The assurance that a cheque for at least $2.36 will be going out to those families came Thursday, when the Colonist 500 Fund eased up to $1,181.30.

When the fund closes near Christmas, the money will be divided evenly among the 500 Greater Victoria families who need it the most.

Why Things Cheaper in U.S.

Even Their Climate Better

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Deutsch notes or to staff members seated around the committee room, he gave senators and MPs a short-course in Keynesian economic theories and their past current and possible future application to Canada.

Most witnesses testifying in parliamentary committees all down, but Mr. Deutsch said he thinks better on his feet.

The former finance department official and vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, ticked off these reasons for a generally higher price level in

Usually without reference to

Canada, so far as the shopper is concerned:

● The 1962 devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 89¢ cents in U.S. funds, while still giving impetus to Canadian growth, does mean a difference in the meaning of dollar when comparing U.S. and Canadian prices.

● Canadian tariffs are designed to protect Canadian industry and to encourage the establishment of a new industry. Their real purpose is to keep

Canadian prices higher, not just to provide a hurdle over which cheaper imports must jump.

● So far as foods are concerned, growing conditions are less favorable in Canada than in the U.S. Climatic conditions also are more severe in Canada for many kinds of business endeavors.

● The productivity of Canadian workers is about 20 per cent less than their U.S. counterparts.

● Scales of production are smaller. There is less specialization and smaller production runs than in American plants.

● Canadian skills and training are lower.

Mr. Deutsch was replying to questions by Senator Elsie Inman (L-P.E.I.), who said she saw prices in the U.S. which generally were lower than for the same products in Canada.

Manhattan adrift in sea of smog

Smog Blankets New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Freak weather conditions blanketed most of the East Coast with stagnant air Thursday, doubling pollution and threatening industrial centres with an onslaught of death-dealing smog.

The heavily industrialized New York-New Jersey metropolitan area was hardest hit by the so-called "temperature inversion" which stretched from Maine to Virginia and the Carolinas.

The New York City air pollution index measuring sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide and dust-carrying haze soared to 60.4 between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. today.

EST, more than 10 points above what had been announced as the danger level. The "preferred" level is 12.

Earlier a department spokesman had said that when the index rose to 43.4 at dawn Thursday, "we were very, very close to the first alert stage of our air pollution warning system." The department has been measuring pollution and issuing summonses to law violators on a round-the-clock basis since Wednesday.

An air "stagnation alert" issued at noon Wednesday was to remain in effect through noon today.

Officials said the drop in industrial activity during the Thanksgiving holiday was balanced by increased use of automobiles.

City health officials warned residents with heart or lung diseases, respiratory ailments or even bad colds to stay indoors. At the request of city pollution control commission Austin H. Heller, two major area power companies, Consolidated Edison and Long Island Lighting, agreed to use natural gas wherever possible and municipal incinerators were shut down completely for at least 24 hours. New Yorkers were asked to stop burning refuse and using private incinerators.

STALLED AIR CAP

Should the air pollution warning system, drawn up by the New York-New Jersey co-operative committee on Interstate Air Pollution, have to be put into effect, cars and buses would be banned from the streets, industry closed and curfews imposed on lighting and heating.

The emergency was the result of a "cap" of air stalled over the area in relatively windless weather since early this week. Without wind, fog rising from cooling ground at night remains static during the day and blocks the sun's heat.

This means there is a cap of warm air over the cooler ground level acting as a ceiling so that fumes cannot rise high enough to dissipate harmlessly.

Spaniards Exhorted To Vote Dec. 14

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Franco's government Thursday began a press and television campaign urging Spaniards to vote in a referendum Dec. 14 for constitutional reforms which will pave the way for a more liberal regime.

Posters urging the population to "vote for your peace and the peace of your relatives" blossomed in the streets as an official announcement confirmed the expected referendum date. About 19,000,000 men and women of a population of 33,000,000 have the right to vote.

Vancouver Couple Dies in Car

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Officials Thursday identified a couple found dead in their parked car Wednesday as Garth-Lyle Clark, 41, and his wife, Elizabeth, 26, of Vancouver, B.C.

Ken Raynie, coroner for Jefferson County, said the couple died of carbon monoxide poisoning in their auto, parked in Clear Creek Canyon northwest of here.

Capt. Anthony Erusky, sheriff investigator, said deputies found the car with a garden hose connected to the auto's exhaust pipe and extended through a right rear window. The engine was still running.

Turkey Day Treat

Macy's Mounties Wow U.S.

NEW YORK (CP) — Under fire in Viet Nam, clouds on the central U.S. plains and smog-filtered sunlight on Broadway, Americans celebrated their Thanksgiving holiday Thursday.

They had a big assist from Canadians in New York, where Canadian soldiers, Mounties, Miss Canada and a Montreal World's Fair float formed a big part of the holiday parade organized by Macy's department stores.

This time the Macy's parade, begun 40 years ago to promote Christmas shopping, also promoted the Montreal fair and Canada's confederation centennial next year.

Miss Canada, 19-year-old Barbara Kelly of Vancouver, barely had time to catch her breath after the parade before leaving by plane for home. Having adorned the 1967 World's Fair float here, she will ride again in the Grey Cup parade tonight.

PRAYER, FOOTBALL

Throughout the United States, there were prayers in massive cathedrals and small churches, parades along broad avenues and sun-plashed streets, and football games.

Macy's spokesmen estimated that 1,000,000 persons thronged the streets of central Manhattan to see the parade, while another 60,000,000 watched on network television.

LOUD CHEERS

The Mounties, riding directly ahead of the World's Fair float, drew especially loud cheers along the 43-block parade route. In Herald Square, terminal point of the parade, they performed a modified version of the Musical Ride.

Soldiers from Canada's

Black Watch regiment got cores for a sabre dance and the bands of the Black Watch and the Royal Dragoons played "Scotland the Brave" to wind up the festivities.

President Johnson and his family enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner on their ranch in Texas. The president, his voice still husky from his recent throat operation, presided over a dining table on which two turkeys, one wild and one domestic, were served to Mrs. Johnson.

Their daughters, Lynda and Luci; Luci's husband, Patrick J. Nugent, and several relatives.

The family scene was enacted at happy tables across the country. There were sad tales, too, with a mounting toll of highway accidents claiming human lives as millions of cars jammed the roads.

The United States has 300,000 servicemen and women in Viet Nam, but efforts were made to serve turkey and the dressings to all of them. Helicopters carried hot meals to troops in the field. Warships at sea were filled with the aroma of roasting turkey.

Recognition Now

IT IS NOW a certainty that Communist China will not be granted membership to the United Nations for at least another year.

For the Canadian delegation headed by the Hon. Paul Martin, which for the first time in history was ready—and able—to take a positive stand on the subject, this was a signal disappointment as, indeed, it must be for any responsible nation which professes support for the principles of the UN and the universality of its membership.

But though Mr. Martin accepted defeat with all the diplomatic grace at his disposal by recognizing the utility of attempting to push forward a motion before the General Assembly he did make a major contribution before the international body by submitting guidelines as the basis for an eventual solution to the problem.

Mr. Martin suggested that Communist China not only be granted membership in the General Assembly but that it also replace Nationalist China as a permanent member of the Security Council.

Nationalist China, he said, should be allowed to retain its UN membership with a seat in the General Assembly representing the government and people of Taiwan.

Mr. Martin's exposition of Canada's guidelines undoubtedly made an impact upon the General Assembly in that it not only marked an end of Canadian fence-sitting on the matter but for the first time demonstrated publicly a complete divergence of opinion with United States policy on a major international issue.

Though the sincerity of Mr. Martin's action before the General Assembly cannot be questioned, Canada's position—both politically and morally—would be immensely strengthened abroad if it were now to grant immediate diplomatic recognition to the Peking government.

Better Than None

LIKE any other measure that hits the pocket book, the decision of the government to increase the interest rate on National Housing Act loans from 6 1/2 per cent to 7 1/4 per cent, will arouse individual criticism.

On the other hand, sufficient money for housing loans at the 6 1/2 per cent level does not exist in the present tight money situation, and there will be many who will agree that it is better to pay 7 1/4 per cent than to be unable to get a loan at all.

On a $15,000 NHA 25-year loan the higher interest rate will add about $5 a month or $60 a year to the financing charges on a new home. This is a lot of money, but anyone attempting to secure conventional mortgage money at the present time is paying 8 per cent or more, and so in comparison the NHA rate is still a bargain.

Indeed those intimately connected with the mortgage field still have some doubt as to whether the big lending institutions, mainly the insurance and trust companies, will be sufficiently enthused with the new 7 1/4 per cent to resume their investment in NHA loans. Unless they do, the present slump in new home construction will continue.

The next few weeks will provide this answer, and there is one important point that might well inspire less lending interest and that is the government's proposal to review the NHA interest rate at three-month intervals so that it may indeed float along with the current bond market rates.

It could thus well be that the present 7 1/4 per cent level on NHA loans will not continue for long, and that those who lend at this level will find themselves with a premium piece of paper for the next 25 years—fully guaranteed by the government, of course.

If the money becomes available, there is little doubt that it will be snapped up by building contractors, for throughout the country the number of vacant homes is decreasing to the rate that unless a resumption of home building is resumed in the very near future a serious shortage of housing will develop.

Leading the Way

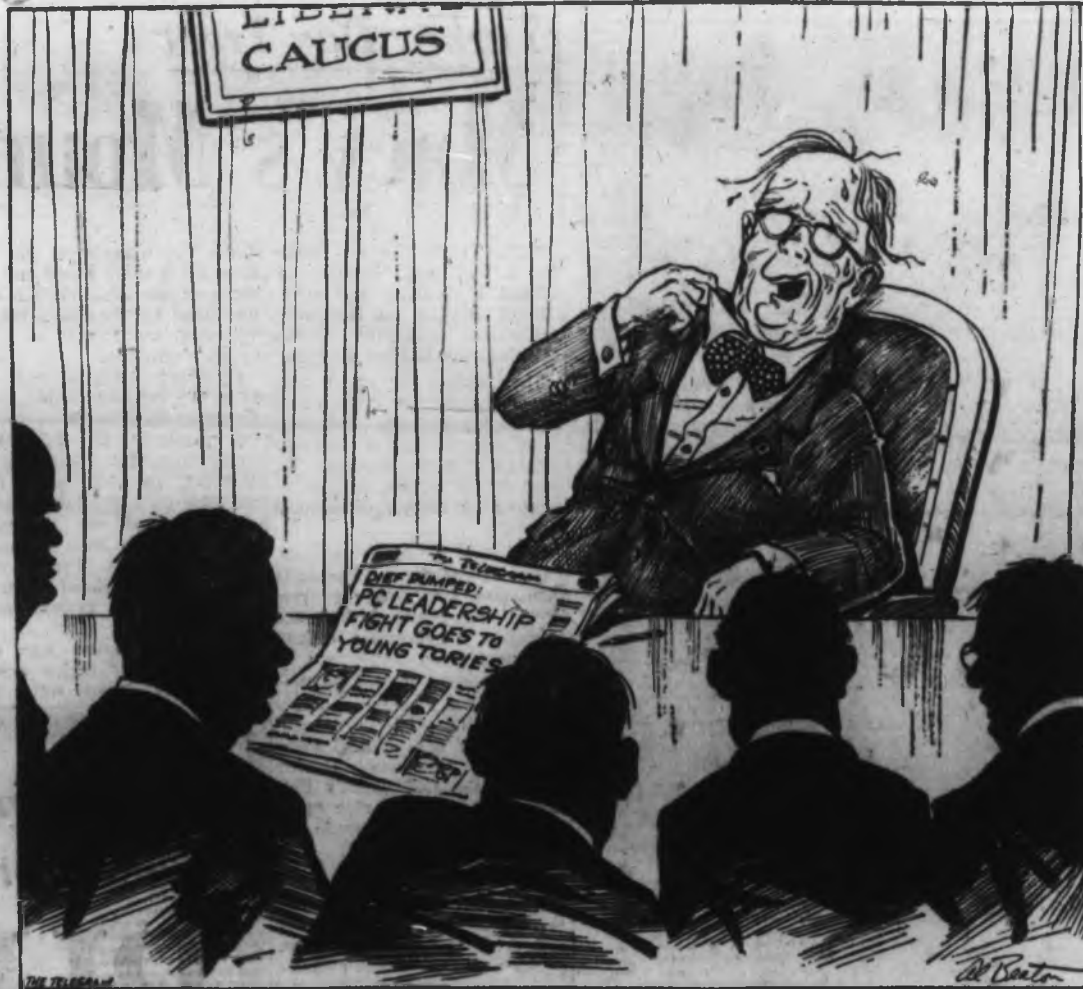

PREMIER Bennett is always full of surprises but the announcement of the creation of a special provincial decoration, the Order of the Dogwood, coincident with B.C. centenary date last Saturday, was of unusual and unexpected nature.

There are few awards of merit of distinctive Canadian origin and this one gives a lead to other provinces which may desire to recognize services of conspicuous quality.

The first awards of this new order are conferred on five individuals whose selection is appropriate: the Queen Mother Elizabeth, who is held in affection by British Columbia, the Lord Mayor of London who took part in last weekend's centennial ceremony, the governor of the Hudson's Bay Company who officiated at the opening of this centenary year celebrations in February, and two highly respected former lieutenant-governors, Hon. Frank Ross and Hon. Clarence Wallace.

As with the long-lost Canada Medal and its national connotations, the Order of the Dogwood, reflecting the official provincial floral emblem, is for bestowal upon individuals of special distinction in relation to British Columbia. The Canada Medal, although instituted in the wartime year of 1943, was also designed to honor civilians as well as military personnel who have rendered valuable and meritorious service. But for some reason unknown to the public, although struck and formally announced, it has never been awarded. It lies mysteriously in some Ottawa pigeon-hole.

The new B.C. decoration doubtless will be continuous in its bestowal when suitable recipients are envisaged. Two figures who may might reasonably be expected to become additions to the roll of the Order of the Dogwood come easily to mind: the present lieutenant-governor, Hon. George Pearkes, who like his two predecessors honored last Saturday has been outstandingly devoted to his gubernatorial role, and Mr. Bennett himself when he decides to step down from his long and notable tenure of office as B.C. premier.

"Well, that's one problem we haven't got ... Have we ...? Well ...?"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...
By TOM TAYLOR

I GATHER that Mr. Robert Bonner, the attorney-general, is being persuaded to alter his looks, meaning his facial features, so that he might appeal to the Caribbean voters as the man to choose next Monday.

Personally I never found much wrong with his looks, or even his manner. On the few occasions I have watched him speak he seemed to me to be as personable as the next man. Even with a touch of whimsy at his verbal command.

But seemingly his advisers think he is too austere for a frontier region, so he has been smiling a lot, cracking jokes, and adopting the folksy style supposed to go over big in rural areas.

The test will come when the ballots are counted but a man, even a politician, is after all himself and can't really camouflage either his looks or his mind without himself showing through. Close-up at this.

But as never before, perhaps because of television, what a politician looks like, his facial image, handsome or otherwise, might decide his fate. It is still said across the line that Richard Nixon lost the presidency in 1960 because the late John F. Kennedy outshone him in facial appeal, especially among the women voters.

Good looks in a man aren't the same for other men as they are for the ladies, you know. Although I also thought JFK appeared the better favored by nature when these two matched wits and male beauty in a notable TV debate.

Mr. Bonner hasn't gone on TV as far as I know but he is on the grass roots, as the political lingo runs, where the voters can examine him face to face. And, I presume, without makeup.

What you see of personalities on TV can be much different from what you'd see if you met them on the street.

Which is why some MPs would like parliamentary debates televised and wouldn't. Some folk even if grudgingly endowed by nature are more photogenic than their fellow men. And fellow women too, if one might refer to a woman as a fellow. The lens of a camera doesn't play fair, as all of us can affirm when group snapshots are taken on social occasions.

Everybody always thinks somebody else looks lovely; but oneself? No. This writer included. He even wonders what others see in him when he abases with his eyes open of a man.

Mr. Bonner has gone even further, I read. He's been strolling Caribbean towns in grey pants and cowboy belt to suit the menage he's courting, his business suit discarded. Coincidentally this week a participant in a Montreal bank robbery said he'd worn a business suit so he wouldn't be taken for a robber.

The attorney-general isn't, of course, a robber in disguise, when wearing his business suit, very much the reverse since his job is to carry out laws which grow on robbers. But he is matching his garb to what is expected of him, apparently, and no doubt with some inward quiver.

Beauty is said to be but skin deep, and a man of worth isn't to be judged by his face, although as I remarked above there isn't much wrong with Mr. Bonner's face.

It's what you do with it, however, especially in an election, that may count.

I daresay when it's all over he'll be glad to get back to his business suit and his usual cast of countenance. But of course he'll be even more glad if his temporary departure from the norm paid off in votes.

Quarrelsome Partners

It's the Public, Not Labor, That Needs Protection

By E. E. FEARHMAN
This is the first of three articles by one of B.C.'s foremost authorities on labor-management relations.

UNIONS are here to stay. Even those employers who are not blessed with union certification do not say that unions should be abolished.

But what one usually hears from employers is the wish that union spokesmen would be less demanding, more responsible, and more cooperative—for the good of the employer, the employee, and last but not least, for the good of the fellow who pays the bills.

Management should not, however, attempt to blame someone else for its own failures, in this regard.

I must admit that responsible unions have a case in our society. They are here to stay and they can be a force for good and management and labor can work together and progress together. But this does not mean and should not mean that management must give up its right to manage. If you wish to manage—to stay in business—then surely you must assert that right.

It is not the fault of the unions; it is management that, in recent years, has permitted itself to be completely conditioned in its thinking that it cannot do this and it cannot do that. I have been absolutely amazed at the number of times an employer has shown his complete ignorance of his own rights.

This is not to say that a good many of the so-called privileges of management did not require to be removed or refined, and the rights of the employee enlarged and improved. This is not to say that on were long overdue. However, under existing laws and existing conditions the employee is now fully protected against exploitation or abuse.

This is not the employer and the public at large who need protection.

One might wonder whether the employer and the general public realize this. The employer is too busy with his day-to-day operation of his business to realize that the right to manage his business is now being openly challenged.

Let me cite a few actual examples of the complete loss of a major aspect of management. I know of contracts here in this country where large corporations have agreed to a clause in their collective agreements under which they cannot lay off an employee until they have satisfied the union that failure to reduce staff would jeopardize the financial stability of the company.

Another rather prevalent clause in collective agreements right here in British Columbia provides not merely that the employer must employ only members of a particular union, but he must not enter into sub-contracts unless the employees of the sub-contractors are members of the same union.

Another favorite clause of the unions is that which says "the employers shall not contract out any work presently being performed by members of the union." I could cite dozens of examples. How many do? Most employers are too engrossed in their day to day problems to think about union contracts. They kick it under the rug and hope they won't have to deal with it. Small wonder that collective agreements over the years have become a documentation of union rights and privileges, with little, if anything, in them about management's rights.

It is now accepted as a document stipulating what the union or employee may do and the employer may not do. Certainly the employee must be protected, but what about the employer? One may ask how this has come about. What has happened to management, why is its most basic right the right to manage so endangered?

There is, I venture to suggest, no simple answer. It is probably a combination of factors that has led to the present situation. It seems abundantly clear to me that labor-management relations have for one reason or another in recent times inevitably deteriorated to the point that the determining factor is purely a question of power—force—the economic weapon, as some people like to describe it. This being so, who holds that power? Who wields the big stick? The answer seems obvious.

It is not the employer, of course. It is the union. It is the union that can and he should so long as he does not endeavor to intimidate or coerce them. Not only does he have that right, he should exercise it. He owes a duty to his own employees to keep them fully informed of his own position and his reasons for adopting that position. I have had employers ask me if they or their employees can legally cross a picket line. Of course they can. No one, and I repeat, to one, has the right to stop them whether it be a legal, illegal or so-called "ghost" picket line.

Management sometimes slinks to a low level and with it the lack of enforcement of the laws of our country. When the owner of a business must seek permission from a union to enter his own premises or use his own equipment, there is something radically wrong. Yet that has happened many times.

It is time management stopped buying so-called peace and started buying back the right to manage. Management needs the flexibility to compete, to automate, to change obsolete methods, to use employee resources more efficiently, to contract out when efficiency and economy so dictate.

Management must avoid expanding the costly fringe benefits already being carried to the point where the cost of production is jeopardizing our entire economic structure. The starting point along this course would be for management to commence devoting a little more thought and a lot more time to the relationship between employer and employee.

If the employees are deserving of more pay or better working conditions in relation to employees in the same area who are doing similar work, and in relation to productivity, then management should recognize this. It is an appalling fact that all too many managers, superintendents, supervisors and foremen are not sufficiently aware of working conditions in their own plants, or of the terms and conditions contained in their own collective agreements.

It is time management prepared for negotiations well in experience of the needs of the advance. How many do? Most employers are too engrossed in their day to day problems to think about union contracts. They kick it under the rug and hope they won't have to deal with it. Small wonder that collective agreements over the years have become a documentation of union rights and privileges, with little, if anything, in them about management's rights.

It is now accepted as a document stipulating what the union or employee may do and the employer may not do. Certainly the employee must be protected, but what about the employer? One may ask how this has come about. What has happened to management, why is its most basic right the right to manage so endangered?

There is, I venture to suggest, no simple answer. It is probably a combination of factors that has led to the present situation. It seems abundantly clear to me that labor-management relations have for one reason or another in recent times inevitably deteriorated to the point that the determining factor is purely a question of power—force—the economic weapon, as some people like to describe it. This being so, who holds that power? Who wields the big stick? The answer seems obvious.

It is not the employer, of course. It is the union. It is the union that can and he should so long as he does not endeavor to intimidate or coerce them. Not only does he have that right, he should exercise it. He owes a duty to his own employees to keep them fully informed of his own position and his reasons for adopting that position. I have had employers ask me if they or their employees can legally cross a picket line. Of course they can. No one, and I repeat, to one, has the right to stop them whether it be a legal, illegal or so-called "ghost" picket line.

Management sometimes slinks to a low level and with it the lack of enforcement of the laws of our country. When the owner of a business must seek permission from a union to enter his own premises or use his own equipment, there is something radically wrong. Yet that has happened many times.

It is time management stopped buying so-called peace and started buying back the right to manage. Management needs the flexibility to compete, to automate, to change obsolete methods, to use employee resources more efficiently, to contract out when efficiency and economy so dictate.

Management must avoid expanding the costly fringe benefits already being carried to the point where the cost of production is jeopardizing our entire economic structure. The starting point along this course would be for management to commence devoting a little more thought and a lot more time to the relationship between employer and employee.

If the employees are deserving of more pay or better working conditions in relation to employees in the same area who are doing similar work, and in relation to productivity, then management should recognize this. It is an appalling fact that all too many managers, superintendents, supervisors and foremen are not sufficiently aware of working conditions in their own plants, or of the terms and conditions contained in their own collective agreements.

It is time management prepared for negotiations well in experience of the needs of the

Trouble in Paradise

Bahamas Colonists Charge Corruption

By HALCO FERGUSON from London

WHILE legislators from Bermuda are in London discussing constitutional changes for their country, a group of politicians from another "island paradise," the Bahamas, has also been here on a flying visit to try to persuade the colonial secretary, Mr. Fred Lee, to convene a similar conference for Britain's other Atlantic colony.

The Bahamian delegation, led by Mr. Paul Adderley, was composed of members of the National Democratic Party, one of the two opposition parties in the Bahamian Assembly. One of its major complaints about the present constitutional set-up was the same as that of the Bermudian opposition: the alleged gerrymandering of constituency boundaries to favor the perpetuation in power of a conservative "oligarchy," represented in this case by the United Bahamian Party.

The Bahamas, lying just to the north of Cuba, are a group of some 700 islands, of which 30 are inhabited, and have been a British colony for over 300 years, except for a short period of Spanish occupation in 1782 and 1783. Of the 140,000 population some 15 to 20 per cent are descended from British settlers and the remainder from imported African slaves (there was never an indigenous population).

By far the major industry is tourism. The tourists themselves, predominantly North American, are probably completely unaware of any political or social problem, from which they are deliberately cushioned.

But the tourists are unwittingly responsible for at least three major local issues: the need for presenting them with a tranquil image of the colony makes it possible for the conservative UBP to represent proposals of changes in the status quo as "unpatriotic"; to enter to the tourists a casino has been built, bringing undesirable side-effects; and a free trade area (known as Freeport) has been set up, which the opposition alleges absorbs revenue as a private company which should go to the state.

The opposition originally consisted of one party, the People's Liberal Party, but since October 1965 it has been weakened by a split, caused by the walk-out of the members who now form the National Democratic Party. This was precipitated by the protest of a People's Liberal Party member who denounced the UBP's charge of lack of democracy in the Bahamas by throwing the mace (the parliamentary symbol) out of the Assembly. This was regarded as counter-productive by the dissent members, as was a subsequent boycott of the Assembly by the P.L.P. in which they refused to join. But although they then formed their own National Democratic Party, Mr. Adderley stressed to me that the two parties had never "fought on the floor of the House," and continued to vote together on major issues.

One of these is of course the question of constituency boundaries. These were redrawn after the constitutional conference of May 1963, in a manner supposed to be a compromise between the demands of government and opposition. But Mr. Adderley claims the advantage is all on the side of the incumbent UBP and the powerful business interests (known locally as the Bay Street Boys) who dominate it. Nassau, the capital, New Providence Island, is divided into 17 single-seat constituencies, and the "outer islands" into 21, of which 12 return two and three members each.

Mr. Adderley claims that these plural constituencies are designed to ensure the election of at least one UBP member in constituencies which would otherwise be won by the opposition. Where the UBP has a safe seat, he alleges, only one member is returned. Many of these safe seats are in the poorer and remoter areas, and Mr. Adderley explains this partly by the innate conservatism of the islanders and partly by the workings of the "patronage" system.

To combat this latter abuse his party wants to see the elimination of the "illiteracy vote." This allows illiterate voters to declare their political allegiance verbally according to UBP candidates are reimbursed by the party agent, so that perfectly literate people claim they cannot read in order to collect (the standard price of a vote is said to be £25 as opposed to £3 a few years ago, reflecting rising expectations rather than inflation). The National Democratic Party would like to stamp this out by the use of symbols on ballot papers.

Another constitutional change the NDP would like to see is a redistribution of seats in the Senate, the upper house. Eight senators are nominated by the British governor, five are chosen by the majority, and two by the leader of the opposition. At present one of the governor's nominees (a former UBP member) is leader of government business, and the NDP would like this post to be restricted to "political" nominees — "as it is the UBP virtually increases its numbers by one," Mr. Adderley pointed out.

They would also like the "political" seats to be apportioned not in a five to two ratio but on the basis of the proportion of votes polled in a general election.

The NDP delegation, in a memorandum to the colonial secretary, has expressed its opposition to any suggestion of independence for the Bahamas until these reforms have been carried out.

Egypt Accused of Using 'Blinding Gas'

By LAWRENCE MOSHER from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

Egyptian planes are dropping "canisters of poison gas" on remote royalist areas in northwest Yemen, according to a noted English Arabist who has just spent six months in the region.

Wilfred Thesiger, a distinguished scholar and traveller of Arabia, said here that he personally saw 20 victims of "blinding gas." He said he treated one boy from his own stock of medicines.

There have been no medical facilities or doctors in this area since the withdrawal of Red Cross personnel following the armistice signed by Egypt and Saudi Arabia a year ago, August.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, headquartered in Geneva, has recently sent 12 doctors into Royalist Yemen because of "massive" Egyptian bombings which resumed two months ago. Six doctors are expected to reach the northwestern area in a week.

The Red Cross representative for Yemen, Andre Rochat, has been informed of Thesiger's "poison gas" report.

Thesiger said the Egyptians also are using a "blister gas," possibly of the mustard type. He said one Yemen man died in agony from this gas. Thesiger said he believed most of the "blinding gas" victims would not regain their eyesight because of unavailable medical treatment.

Thesiger said he told King Faisal what he had seen in Royalist Yemen during an audience here last week.

Two years ago, when the Yemen civil war was in full swing, there were reports of the use of toxic gas by the Egyptians on Yemen civilians. No proof was obtainable, however. A Yemen boy was later sent to London for a medical examination but the diagnosis was inconclusive.

A Royalist Yemen spokesman here, who had visited one "gassed" village two days after the "attack" in early 1964, said the victims became nauseous and developed "pink spots" on their bodies as if they had been scalded by hot water. Women and animals lost their ability to produce milk, he said.

Crisis Cause

Germany Lacks Leaders

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Bonn

The cabinet crisis here in Bonn is a crisis of German democracy. But it is a crisis in a way different from and deeper than that suggested by the emergence of the neo-Nazi Party.

The central fact is that the federal republic, after less than two decades, has run itself into the ground. It has not produced leaders who are at once broadly acceptable and capable of meeting the fundamental national problems that now plague West Germany.

What is required here, accordingly, is time for a new crop of leaders to emerge. During this dangerous period of regeneration, the best that can be done is to neutralize explosive elements. Fortunately, there is a formula ready to hand for that purpose: The big coalition, or Groesse Koalition, the ruling Christian Democrats with the opposition Social Democrats.

Of the acute national problems here, foreign policy is the best-known. The basic difficulty is that most Germans are not very interested in the things that are now possible. The Atlantic Alliance, West European unity, arms control, even participation in nuclear decisions leave them cold. What they want is progress toward German unification.

Unification depends upon a policy which engages the Communist states of Eastern Europe, including East Germany. But no West German leader, nor even any West German party, has yet faced up to the need, not to mention the means, for dealing with East Germany on the problem of unification.

Another acute national problem, scarcely heard of at all elsewhere, is financial. Under the West German constitution, a high proportion of tax revenue are reserved to the member states of the federal republic.

As a result, the federal government has been increasingly strapped for funds. To meet the financial problem, there is required a fundamentally new approach — perhaps even a change in the constitution. But so far, no German leader and no German party has yet faced up to the acute stringency of the financial problem.

Given these two current insuperable problems, there exist here two grave political dangers far more serious than the threat of a Nazi revival. The first is the danger that the Social Democrats would come to power under conditions that made successful rule impossible.

If that were to happen, all the painstaking efforts of the past decade to modernize the party

The second immediate danger is that the Christian Democrats might slip into an opposition based on radical nationalism. Specifically, there is the threat that an ambitious politician, such as the former defence minister Franz-Joseph Strauss, might lead the Christian Democrats to denounce the Social Democrats as wild-eyed leftwingers bent on selling out the country and debasing its institutions.

As it happens, the Big Coalition formula meets both these dangers as well as the threat of the neo-Nazi. For in a big coalition with the Christian Democrats, the Social Democrats would acquire the ultimate imprimatur of respectability as a national party. Blame for whatever harsh measures had to be adopted, or for whatever went wrong, would be shared equally between the Social Democrats and the Christian Democrats.

At the same time, moreover, the Big Coalition would form a government solid enough to absorb and contain the ambitions of Herr Strauss. And finally, the two major parties could easily pass a new electoral law effectively eliminating the neo-Nazi as a force in federal politics.

Boycott Fear Spurs Massive Search

South Africa Hunts for Oil

By RON ANDERSON
From Johannesburg

South Africa suddenly has launched a massive search for oil.

Major oil companies from all parts of the world are being spurred on by the government to find the oil which would give the country a tremendous economic boost and which also would be of great strategic importance.

The search has become vital now because of United Nations threats to impose oil boycotts on South Africa.

The fact that Prime Minister John Vorster is soon to set a huge drilling rig in motion indicates the importance the government attaches to the search.

The British-controlled oil boycott of Rhodesia (although only partially successful) has shown how effective this weapon can be. If South Africa incurs additional UN disfavor over the Southwest Africa issue, it could be in a similar predicament.

So the search is on, both on land and at sea. The searchers are being encouraged more by optimism than by any real clues that there is in fact oil waiting to be tapped. Some geologists have indicated the search is futile.

BACKGROUND

But the government is undaunted. It has formed a company called Soekor ("soek" in Afrikaans means search) to co-ordinate the program.

Soekor has imported one of the largest drilling rigs in the world from the Persian Gulf to drill in the arid Karoo area of the Cape.

This drill was started by the late Hendrik F. Verwoerd shortly before his assassination. Now his successor, Vorster, is to start the second one, almost as big.

In addition, numbers of private companies are drilling with small rigs all over the country, but mainly in the Cape and in Zululand. Wild rumors of strikes keep reverberating through the country.

The search now has extended to the continental shelf off the South African coast. Recently seven companies have been given concessions to search in specific areas off the coast.

Most of the experts being consulted by the South African government have stressed that the explorations will be "wildcat" operations because nothing is known about the geology of the continental shelf.

It has often been stressed that oil is the major "missing link" in the South African economy. The country spends about $100,000,000 every year buying oil.

South Africa has gold and diamonds, iron and copper, wool and fruit. It has almost everything except oil. So the government is spending many million of dollars in the search for the one commodity which could make South Africa a self-sufficient industrial giant.

Japanese, China Agree on Trade

TOKYO (AP) — A private Japanese group and China have signed a 1967 trade agreement in Peking totalling slightly less than $200,000,000, the Kyodo news service said. The agreement is the fifth and last phase of a long-term trade plan representatives of the two countries drew up in an unofficial memorandum in 1962.

Politics Practical

Cariboo Filled with Rugged Pioneer Types

By WILLIAM THOMAS
Colonist Staff Writer

QUESNEL — It's easy in the Cariboo to spend time running up and down the snow covered pavement trying to influence voters but the question remains — what do the men in the ranching districts of this big country think? The Cariboo riding eddies out across thousands of square miles that take in some of the most rugged individualists in Canada.

The pioneer spirit is not yet even a generation away. Many Cariboo residents tramped the rut-etched roads from the railhead at Ashcroft to find a new life and freedom of expression here. The spirit of aggressive individuality has caused many American immigrant ranchers to call this region not the new frontier but the last frontier.

Politics mean better facilities to sell the plump grass-fed steers, higher prices for what Cariboo feels are the best-tasting root vegetables in the world and a vibrant, active lumber market.

No Cariboo family is more typical of the spirit of independence than the Higdon who ranch on land bordering the Fraser River on the old highway south of Quesnel.

The Higdon raise Black Angus cattle, and when I got out to the ranch Thursday the stock were speckled with fresh snow as they munched the alfalfa hay that puts the steak on.

The Higdon have been here a long time. Members of an old southern family of Springfield, Missouri, they operated a stage coach business until the railroads forced them west.

The iron road and the Civil War pushed them into Helena, Montana but again the train service forced them to move.

David Atkinson Higdon tried his luck in Cottonwood, Idaho but in 1908 he and two other men decided if they could not lick the rails they would at least ride them.

They arrived in Ashcroft and started the long walk up to Cariboo.

David Higdon, a man determined to provide for his growing family, was set on getting back into the stagecoach business but instead he bought 1,500 acres of prime land from a John Chapman.

This week the mighty Fraser River is sluggish and flooded with floating ice but over the last million years it has cut its way by various routes to the sea. It is this pattern of the river which has left the patches of rich Fraser silt loam. This soil grows great root crops and lush, abundant hay crops.

The first Higdon in the Cariboo set to work as soon as he arrived and put in his crop before starting a home for his family.

He brought them to Ashcroft and then rode with them on the BX Stage to Soda Creek. The new arrivals were carried north by the sternwheel steamer that bucked the current upstream to Roddies Landing.

Supplies and cordwood for the boilers were taken aboard here but the Higdon stepped ashore for the last leg of the trip to their new ranch home. The Roddies lent them a horse which the children took turns riding home. Furniture and chattels followed.

In those days rugged independence and survival meant hard work. A prime source of income came from growing hay to feed the horses that the department of highways used in building the road to Prince George.

Roads even at that time were a big issue in the Cariboo.

As the years passed the ranch was slightly reduced in size but much more land was put into cultivation until now the ranch is envied for miles for its potatoes and fine Angus beef.

We sat around the kitchen table and yapped about politics, a very serious subject and one on which most Cariboo ranchers are very well informed.

We were deep into Mr. Bonner's chances when the conversation was disrupted by a cow that had wandered into the garden to romp on some corn stalks.

Barry Higdon, an ex-army officer and son of one of the children who walked from Ashcroft, ran out to chase away the intruder.

His father Jess, born in Missouri, will have to vote in Cache Creek this year for he is on his way to Vancouver for a directors' meeting of the Vegetable Marketing Board.

His brother Kew had plenty to say on the upcoming byelection but we had trouble keeping on the subject.

Lumber cutting conditions, the price of beef and the problems of financing the new stockyard at Barkley Creek kept creeping into the talk.

But these things are the stuff of practical politics here and they are the ones that draw the most questions at meetings.

Grid Fans Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Sasatoon couple flying to Vancouver for the Grey Cup football game are missing on a two-hour flight from Cranbrook to Penticton a search and rescue spokesman said Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy James Brown, the parents of six children, took off from Cranbrook at noon Thursday in a single-engine aircraft.

Case Dropped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stays of proceeding have been entered in two criminal negligence charges against city fireman James McGuckin, who was charged following a collision last March.

Party lines are not tightly drawn and the situation is still flexible.

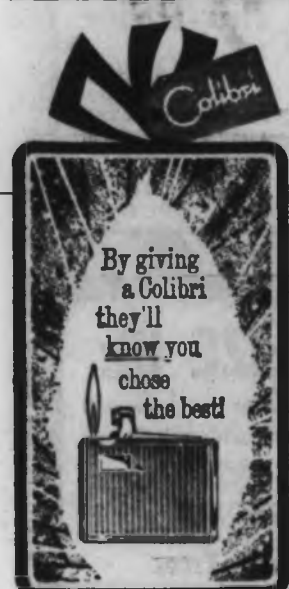

When I rose to leave, with a sack of Cariboo Gem potatoes and a sample of their fine turnips, still nobody was ready to say just how they would vote.

Monday will tell the answer, but whoever gets to Victoria as M.I.A. for Cariboo will have plenty to keep him busy.

If Mr. Bonner wins he may need an executive assistant just to cope with Cariboo problems.

All Hospitals Urged To Help Battle Retarding Disease

Health Minister Eric Martin Thursday urged all hospitals in B.C. to use the free services at the Vancouver General Hospital which might help prevent mental retardation among three or four children a year in this province.

He was referring to a rare hereditary disease called phenylketonuria, which caused brain damage and mental retardation unless it is detected and treated at birth.

It has been found that this disease occurs about once in each 10,000 births.

FOCUS ON KEYS

Desert women of Mauretania wear blue togas weighted with ornamental keys, which are prized as works of art.

Mr. Martin urged all hospitals to send urine samples of newborn babies to the PKU testing laboratory at Vancouver General, where tests will be carried out free and arrangements made for a low-phenylalanine milk substitute to be provided free to babies suffering from the disease.

"Techniques of dietary management of afflicted individuals have been so perfected over recent years that a number of well-documented cases are now on record which show that, given a suitable diet very early in life and continued during the critical years, such children have been enabled to develop normally with normal intellect," the health minister said.

Opposition Not Convinced

Rate Hike Defended By Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher interest rates on government loans for housing "may work hardship on some" but they are a necessary step to make money available in this field, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday.

The minister defended the move, announced earlier this week, to boost rates on National Housing Act loans to 7½ from 6½ per cent.

He said it is better to have mortgage funds available at the higher rate than "no funds at all at 6½ per cent."

The new rate actually will reduce mortgage interest rates for many borrowers who now have to pay interest of eight or nine per cent the minister added.

Earlier in the debate, opposition MPs laced into the program, saying its real effect would be to put home-owning out of reach of all but the wealthy.

There will be some 155,000 houses completed in Canada by the end of the year, Mr. Nicholson said. There was demand for about 200,000.

The new NHA rate was one step that would channel more private funds into the mortgage field and would be one of a number of actions by the government to alleviate the housing shortage.

In any Canadian city today it costs from $5,000 up just to buy a lot, the minister said. People who could afford to put up new homes at these prices would naturally be those in the higher income levels.

Cheaper Houses Released

But if money was available for them to finance such homes, other housing would be released for purchase by those in the lower income brackets.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said NHA had become a vehicle for high-priced homes nobody can afford to buy.

Basic Training Integrating?

HALIFAX (CP) — An armed forces spokesman says consideration is being given to establishment of an experimental basic training program for new recruits at St. John's, Que., early in 1967.

The proposed course would be part of a plan to integrate training in the Canadian armed forces.

He said investors could get far higher returns from industry and commerce and the new rate would only attract "a trickle" of new housing investment and would push the price of an average mortgage up $3,000.

"What kind of a housing act is that? The NHA as we understand it is a complete and total failure in providing homes for persons of modest means."

It was "a dangerous fallacy" for Ottawa to contend that private enterprise had to provide all the capital. It obviously couldn't.

The federal government had to become the primary lender, Mr. Scott urged creation of a federal department of housing and urban affairs. Regardless of the constitutional difficulties, federal leadership was needed.

"If we don't start now, the jungle will get worse."

Kidnap Bonds Broken

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — A 17-year-old youth told police Thursday he was kidnapped, knocked unconscious and held captive for six hours Wednesday but finally managed to escape.

Ian Berks of Windsor, Ont., said he was hitch-hiking to a junior achievement meeting when the driver of a car which picked him up suddenly knocked him unconscious.

Berks said he woke up with someone holding a knife at his throat. He said he was blindfolded and driven to a Lake Erie cottage, where he was tied and held captive.

But the youth worked himself free from his bonds while the kidnapper phoned the victim's father, Dr. Gerald Berks, and asked for ransom money.

ARRESTED

The next call Dr. Berks received was from his son, who had escaped from the cottage and called home. The kidnapper never realized his victim was gone.

Police went to the cottage and arrested Daniel Snively, 20, a Windsor laborer. He was charged with kidnapping and held pending a psychiatric examination.

Mandarin Case 'Hypnotizing'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A defence lawyer in a Mandarin orange price-fixing case said in British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday the case is one in which a person could become hypnotized by documents.

"Reading the documents without witnesses, one can visualize David Oppenheimer (elected as a co-conspirator) sitting in the middle of his web weaving the plot," said Charles Locke.

Mr. Locke is representing Canada Safeway and McDonald's Consolidated, two of 10 firms charged with fixing Mandarin orange prices between 1946 and 1965.

He said that although the companies are charged with restricting imports, there was no proof of any person in Canada being short of oranges during the 20-year period.

Also charged are Birks-Crawford Ltd., Dominion Fruit Ltd., David McNair Co., Consolidated Fruit Ltd., Kelly Douglas, Slade and Stewart, Chess Brothers, W. H. Malkin Ltd., and the secretary of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers' Association, Leslie Burrows.

The trial continues.

Two Convicted of Assault Court Admits Subject Not Touched

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. William Lloyd Bolduc was jailed for six months Thursday after being convicted in county court of indecent assault on a woman the Crown admits he never touched.

It was believed the first case of its kind in Canada.

Convicted on the same charge was David Bird, a Vancouver musician and honors student at the University of British Columbia, who received a suspended sentence.

Prosecutor Eric Bendrodt said the assault consisted of subjecting the 23-year-old woman to an intimate physical examination in Dr. Bolduc's suburban Richmond office while Bird posed as a medical student.

Mr. Bendrodt said Dr. Bolduc and Bird were friends. He said that prior to the examination Bird was given a white coat and stethoscope and later stood by in the examination room while the doctor conducted the checkup on the woman.

The prosecutor said the woman gave her consent to Bird's presence under fraud because she was told Bird was a medical student. Defence counsel Harold Fisher said the doctor should not be found guilty of indecent assault because no assault took place.

More Off Jobs

More clouds gathered on the British Columbia shipping horizon Thursday.

But there was a glimmer of sunshine as federal Labor Minister Nicholson was hastening to B.C. from Ottawa.

Longshoring at Prince Rupert was completely stopped, and there was a partial stoppage at all Vancouver Island ports except Victoria, following renewed firings of longshoremen.

Added to those sent home were 10 crews of 13 men each at Port Alberni, where everything went smoothly Wednesday.

At Victoria Thursday, five gangs were called out to work two ships, and did.

ROOT OF PROBLEM

Over-all, neither side appeared ready to tackle the root of the waterfront trouble, a strike by dock foremen which began a week ago Thursday.

The companies have blamed the union for "conspiracy" with the foremen. The union has blamed the company for causing difficulties by employing inexperienced supervisory personnel.

Longshoremen actually returned to work Thursday after being discharged Wednesday. The employers asked for assurance the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union members would do a day's work for a day's pay.

The firings began again later Thursday morning for what the Maritime Employers' Association termed "deliberate work slowdown."

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Nicholson is flying to Vancouver today. He said in the Commons he had received requests from the union and the companies to intervene.

The companies have denied there was any request.

DEEP CONCERN

In Alberni Valley, there was deep concern the current tie-up would affect others.

One supervisor on the dock estimated three days of inactivity could produce a pile-up it would take three weeks to clear.

But crews continued working at MacMillan Bloedel's Alulp operation, and neither the union nor management would explain why work ceased elsewhere but not at Alulp.

SHUN SHUTDOWN

Workers in other unions suggested the longshoremen don't want to force a complete shutdown of Valley industry.

The ones really getting squeezed in the middle are shipowners, whom it's costing anywhere from $100 to $300 a day to stand idle. And they can't do a thing about it.

The union and management also were involved in a procedural wrangle.

CONDONING CHARGE

The union wants the companies to start grievance procedures against those slowing down, but the companies claim the union is condoning the slowdown.

Ordinarily, a longshoreman who fails to perform satisfactorily may be summarily dismissed by the hiring company.

The cause of his dismissal is reported to the local union. Any grievance procedure which may follow customarily is instituted by the union on behalf of the member. The union takes it up with the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association.

Party Planned For Children

The surplus food stall's children's Christmas party will be held in the Trailside Legion branch on Broad Street Dec. 11, stall operator Joan Price said Tuesday.

Mrs. Price said that owing to the extensive area covered by the surplus food stall, people in Oakwood, Langford, Metchem and Sooke, wishing information should call Mrs. Evelyn Corbett at 478-3437.

Lejeune Elected

Ray Lejeune, director of the Federal Forest Research laboratory here, has been elected as chairman of the B.C. regional advisory committee to the federal forestry department.

The newly-formed committee comprises forest researchers and woods managers from federal and provincial governments and the industry. The committee was formed to tailor forestry research to fit B.C. needs.

Laing Confirms Aid Pledge

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Some of the Indian houses in the Yukon are worse than the worst on the Cowichan Indian Reserve, Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing told his audience of about 40 people, most of them Indians, Thursday.

He said, "We have not done too well in this country but others have not done very well either."

He said Indians also must show initiative.

BAND SOUND

Mr. Laing made his remarks after a brief tour of the reserve here. He landed in the morning on Quamichan Lake and was welcomed by representatives from the Indian band, the city of Duncan and the North Cowichan municipality.

A group of Indian singers and a Sea Cadet band greeted him at the lakeshore.

Following visits to the Queen of Angles' Schools, the Tiny Tot Indian nursery school and the Cowichan Reserve, Mr. Laing received reports from band committees.

His visit was sparked by complaints from the Indians here about appalling housing conditions at the beginning of September.

Thursday, Mr. Laing repeated his earlier announcement his department is prepared to make a special grant to the Cowichan Indians to improve housing conditions.

Indian Commissioner J. V. Boys from Vancouver who was with the minister said 20 new homes would be built next year and funds will suffice to take care of the housing backlog by the end of 1971.

Meeting Set On Fluoridation

A discussion on fluoridation will be sponsored in Oak Bay Dec. 5 by the Individual Rights Association.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay junior secondary school, and will hear a recording of a speech by Dr. Granville Knight, a member of the board of directors of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons.

Mr. Laing said, "If there are Canadian citizens who cannot pay we still shall protect them from the wet."

Commissioner Boys said negotiations with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation are under way to provide loans for Indians who can pay.

Mr. Laing stated it is contemplated the Nanaimo hospital will be closed, "but we should have Canadian hospitals for Canadians and white people and not hospitals for white people and for Indians."

"The standards will be improved by just doing that."

Pollution? Who Cares!

By JOHN MATTERS

Researchers from the University of Victoria are making the first study ever in Canada of the public's concepts of pollution.

They're trying to analyse what people think constitutes pollution, and what should be done about it.

The survey is being made by fourth-year geography students under the direction of Dr. W. R. Derrick Sewell, an economist-geographer who came to the University of Victoria this year from the University of Chicago.

160 PEOPLE

The poll so far has interviewed 150 people in all occupational and age groups from Sidney to Esquimalt, in their homes and on the streets.

Dr. Sewell said he wants to find out just what the people's perceptions of pollution are, then he will match those perceptions against their perceptions of what is good about their environment.

While the final results won't be tabulated until the New Year, Dr. Sewell said if there is a single theme for the opinion collected so far it's apathy.

"We've asked people where they think there are pollution problems," he said. "Many have answered, 'Toronto, New York, Victoria' — in that order."

The pollsters also have been asking people if they have an opinion on the Buttle Lake controversy. Many hadn't heard of it.

Most of the decisions on combatting pollution are made at the political level, by politicians reacting to the public's sentiments, Dr. Sewell explained.

The survey will show what features of the environment appeal to people, features which they presumably would like to see preserved.

Court Fines Halloween Egg Seller $50

OLIVER, B.C. — Egg dealer Edmund Calk was fined $50 after being found guilty of contributing to juvenile delinquency by selling eggs to youngsters on Halloween night. Police said Calk was accused of contributing to juvenile delinquency because he was aware the eggs would be used for an illegal purpose.

Magistrate J. M. Mitchell was told about 70 youngsters were involved in an egg-throwing "war" after Calk sold his wares on Oliver's main street and that the street "looked like an omelet" afterwards.

China Recognition Closer

Mr. Pearson also made statements on Vietnam, Rhodesia and NATO.

In the same debate Conservative leader John Diefenbaker urged the United States to adopt a two month pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

There was a general tone of pessimism throughout Mr. Pearson's assessment of the progress toward peace in the war in Vietnam.

He said there is no hope of peace until the United States removes the fear prevalent in the Communist world that it intends to stay in Viet Nam indefinitely and use it as a military base.

VERY BIG 'IF'

"We have discovered this fear in all the talks and discussions we have had with Communist representatives anywhere."

"If that fear could be removed, it would be a great step forward. There must be the removal of this fear if there is to be peace. But that is a very big 'if' indeed," he said.

Mr. Pearson said the talks External Affairs Minister Marjory Leighton had in Poland and Rhodesia give little encouragement for an early improvement in the Viet Nam situation.

"There does not seem to be much likelihood of a quick settlement," he said.

DISCOURAGING

"It is very discouraging, but realistic to note... there has been no movement in Viet Nam which brings us any closer to a peaceful settlement..."

"I should like to hear a statement from Washington to the effect that bombing will stop and I should like to hear a statement from Hanoi that if the bombing stops the infiltration of troops into South Viet Nam will stop," he said.

Prime Minister Pearson said he hoped NATO would move toward political discussion with Eastern Europe and the countries behind the Iron Curtain. He said there must be more partnership between the North American and European sides of Europe.

Until now, he said, members of NATO have shied away from contacts with Iron Curtain countries.

"Some of its members have thought this would be a sign of weakness or would be too de-lusive, but it is pretty well agreed now that a very important function of NATO is to establish contact with the other collective security organization behind the Iron Curtain," he said.

The prime minister explained in detail Canada's position on the admission of China to the United Nations.

(Canada has suggested the matter be studied by the president of the general assembly rather than by a committee because a committee will be hard to form.)

He said that right up until the past few days Canada had considered putting up a formal resolution to that effect.

RESOLUTION DOOMED

"It might have been — and indeed I think it would have been — defeated by a large majority as something that was going too far for some and not far enough for others," he said.

He answered critics who claim that Red China should not be admitted to the world assembly because its aggressive, warlike tactics violate the UN charter.

"If one applies that charter literally... I don't know how many members of the United Nations would be able to subscribe to membership without some qualification," he said.

But he maintained the members of the UN have an obligation to do what they can to see if a suitable basis can be found to admit the nation which represents 700,000,000 people.

DISCHARGED DUTY

"It may well be that the government of Peking will spurn, as indeed it has already given some indication it will, this kind of offer to find a basis on which membership could be granted."

"The United Nations and its members will have discharged this responsibility if an effort is made to find a basis for membership," he said.

"There is no one who can be optimistic, in the light of events, that it would be possible to find any resolution which would be acceptable to the Peking government except the one in terms of the Albanian resolution," he

He repeated that Canada would not support that resolution which calls for the outright expulsion of the Nationalist Chinese from the UN.

Direct contacts with the Saudi Arabian units offered by Faisal.

Sent armored cars patrolling the streets of Jerusalem's Arab sector — within stone's throw of Israeli border patrols in the divided city — where dissident elements were reported planning new disturbances today, the Moslem holy day.

Reports in Beirut said disturbances already have isolated the city of Nabulus from the rest of Jordan. Roadblocks, severed telephone communications and casualties, possibly some fatal, have been reported there.

PRESSURE ON

The pressure was squarely on Hussein in the Middle East's latest crisis which was triggered when a powerful Israeli combat force lashed into Jordan Nov. 13 in retaliation for Arab sabotage attacks. There were indications that the saboteurs had been acting under orders from Syria.

Meanwhile, on the border with Israel, ostensible target of current Arab manoeuvring, Israeli officials reported Syrian MIG jet fighters had been active in the past few days while Syrian ground forces feverishly worked strengthening concrete defences on the ground.

ARAB IN LIMELIGHT

But the focus was on Arab developments.

In Cairo, the controlled press fired a new bitter trade against Jordan and charged Hussein's regime under Premier Wasfi Telli was angering not Israel but the Arab peoples both inside Jordan and "liberated" Arab states.

CABLE OF THANKS

Hussein bolstered his defences.

He cabled Faisal thanking the Saudi monarch for his "effective stand" with the troop pledge which Hussein said demonstrated actions rather than empty words.

Israel Halts Night Trains

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—The Israeli government has suspended railway service into Jerusalem after dark, apparently for fear of Arab sabotage. The railway administration gave no reason for the suspension but it was understood the lines which ran close to the Jordan border in the Judean hills were considered vulnerable to sabotage.

Steeler Ace Gets Chance With Lions

CALGARY (CP)—Lutz Keller, a guard with Victoria Steeler of the Pacific Coast League, has signed a contract with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Keller's father, Horst Keller of Calgary. He did not reveal terms but said Keller received a bonus for signing.

Keller previously played with Mount Royal College of the Alberta Junior Football League.

Grain

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most of the activity was in oilseeds. More liberal oilseed offerings in early trade were sparked by a Canadian Wheat Board increase in delivery quotas for flax and rapeseed.

Both oilseeds registered early declines but rapeseed rallied with reports of export business involving parcel lots of flax and rapeseed to Japan and Italy.

Trade in oats was extremely light. Connected with domestic feed supply, barley was firm with a report that 9,000 bushels had been sold to Italy.

Prices were firm in light rye trade, reduced by the U.S. Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 1,100,000 bushels to the United Kingdom, $35,000 to Poland, 700,000 to India, 120,000 to Belgium and 60,000 to West Germany.

Lakehead prices for IWA class two and domestic wheat were unchanged.

San Francisco Booklet

New Sex Problem for Courts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The same courts which two years ago refused to ban topless dancers and waitresses are now faced with another sex controversy.

At issue is a slender volume of poetry called The Love Book. Written by a 34-year-old housewife, it celebrates the act of love in vivid terms with a liberal sprinkling of four-letter words.

The five-page poem by Lenore Kandel was being sold at bookstores in North Beach and the Haight-Ashbury district, the city's newest hipster area, until last week when the police decided the booklet had no "redeeming social importance," a standard for determining pornography.

TOO MUCH FOR ONE

Officers arrested the owner and a clerk in one bookstore and a clerk in another and charged them with distributing obscene matter.

Municipal Judge Joseph G. Kennedy, who is scheduled to try two of the defendants, decided the case was too important for a single jurist to handle and recommended the unusual step of creating a three-judge panel.

"This matter is of overwhelming importance to the entire community," he declared. "I'm not prepared to take the brunt of it." A conference with other municipal judges was scheduled to discuss his proposal.

ACQUITTED

Two years ago police swarmed into the North Beach night club area and arrested about 40 topless dancers, waitresses and their bosses for allegedly outraging public decency. However, the municipal judges decided the police were wrong and acquitted the performers and club proprietors.

Miss Kandel said she was "amazed" that police confiscated her book. "Perhaps the obscenities is in their minds — there's none in the book," she said.

1966 Version

New Alice Only For Adults

LONDON (AP) — The BBC warned parents Thursday that its lavish new television version of Alice in Wonderland is unsuitable for children, but it will be shown anyway.

The production of Lewis Carroll's classic was scheduled for Christmas Day, but BBC officials now have decided to show it Dec. 28 at 9 p.m. It is hoped most youngsters will be in bed. The much-loved story has been turned into an adult TV drama with psychological undertones of madness, fear and melancholy.

SILENT FEARS

Jonathan Miller, the satirist and onetime star of the way-out revue Beyond the Fringe, adapted the book and produced the program at a cost of £25,000 (£75,000).

"For the past century we have thought of Alice as a charming fairy story full of cranky animals and jolly playing cards," Miller said.

"But there is an enduring melancholy that outlasts the fun. It is a Victorian fantasy about the pains and perils and the silent fears of growing up."

UPSETTING

Hugh Weldon, the BBC's controller of TV programs, saw the recorded production nine times before announcing that it ought to be seen by adults only.

"This is a 1966 production of Alice," Weldon said. "It is not designed as entertainment for children. It might upset them."

Germany's Right Wing 'No Brown Wave'

HANNOVER, West Germany (CP)—Adolf von Thadden said Thursday night that the right-wing National Democratic Party he heads is not Nazi or neo-Nazi.

Von Thadden, a former Nazi, said: "There is no brown (Nazi) wave rolling over Germany with the NPD."

"No re-Nazification process is in progress, but rather a normalization of the situation since for many years, Federal (West) Germany has not had a right-wing party that has been capable on the political-parliamentary level."

NO MATTER WHO

The NPD, he said, is not trying "to justify the past or minimize crimes, no matter who committed them."

Government sources in Bonn said the NPD has about 22,000 members, 1,300 of whom joined the Nazi party before 1933.

Analysis of the voting in the two states show NPD supporters made up 7.9 per cent of the voters in Hesse and 7.4 of those in Bavaria.

Most of them, analysts showed, were people who usually abstained in state elections. They voted this time to show their displeasure at the prospects of an economic regression and the national political crisis.

The party gets its main support from voters in the 45-to-60 age group.

BONN (Reuters) — Franz Josef Strauss and his Bavarian delegation supplied Munich beer and sausages Thursday to the politicians trying to put together a new West German government.

But the Bavarian gesture was thought unlikely to soften the hostility between the Munich-based Strauss faction of the Christian Democratic Party and the Free Democrats.

CABINET WRECKED

The Free Democrats wrecked the cabinet of outgoing chancellor Ludwig Erhard a month ago by resigning from it and Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the nominee of the ruling Christian Democrats, is trying to put a new coalition together.

The Christian Democrats and the Free Democrats appeared to make no headway over differences on taxation policy that opened another negotiating session with the opposition Social Democrats.

CRANBROOK (CP) — Donald Richard Nelson, 24, of Cranbrook has been charged with the non-capital murder of Patrick Thomas Hughes, 25.

Hughes died in hospital here from stab wounds.

Try Bonded Stock on a friend without letting him see the label.

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky: how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour that dyed-in-the-wool whisky drinkers love.

So if you know someone who buys whisky by labels, introduce him to flavour. Bonded Stock flavour. He'll never look back.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Pay Boost

Pilots Idle Qantas Airline

SYDNEY (Reuters) — A world-wide strike by the 400 pilots of the Australian overseas airline Qantas began at midnight Thursday night, grounding the company's entire fleet.

The strike by the Australian Air Pilot's Federation left stranded hundreds of Qantas passengers who had to switch to other airlines to complete their journeys.

The pilots are demanding pay increases proportionate to those recently awarded here to pilots on domestic Australian routes.

They also are seeking retention of three-pilot crews on all flights and a review of seniority benefits.

A Qantas spokesman said 11 aircraft would be grounded at London, Hong Kong, Manila, New York, Singapore, Honolulu and Tahiti.

Qantas is a private firm, but the Australian government holds substantial shares in it. Captains of Qantas' 707-Bs earn the equivalent of between $12,768 and $16,128 a year. They are asked for a minimum of $16,128 and a maximum of $19,040. First officers earn about one-third less than captains.

The new Triumph Spitfire Mark II sports convertible

Don't tell your girls everything about this car!

There are some things about the Spitfire Mark II the ladies just can't understand. For example: how can a sports car be powerful, comfortable, yet inexpensive?

The Mark II is livelier

Put your foot down and the 68-hp Spitfire engine drives you from 0 to 50 in 10 seconds, with a top speed of over 90 mph on the track. Gearbox has 4 forward speeds with synchromesh in second, third and top.

Smoother, safer ride

Each wheel is independently sprung. Result: safer, faster cornering. And on rough surfaces the wheels alone (not you) soak up the bumps.

Pads-free brakes and safety steering wheel

The Spit's front disc brakes are big, powerful and self-adjusting. They're fade-free and unaffected by rain. Your stops are safe and sure. Maintenance is minimal — new pads can be fitted in minutes.

And for extra safety, the steering column collapses on severe impact.

Spitfire Mark II turns in a 24-foot circle

In city parking, you'll squeeze in where others fear to try. In rally driving, the tight turn gives you an advantage over competition that's positively unfair!

Space age luxury (comfort at high speed)

Comfort at high speed is a unique feature of the Spitfire Mark II. Space age contour seats (like the TR4A) make you feel part of the car. Seats are padded deeper, and upholstered with 2-way stretch Ambia.

Door-to-door deep pile carpeting and carpet panels at base of doors give protection to lower trim.

The windows wind up and down. And in convertible position, the top disappears out of sight.

The Mark II is also available with optional hard top at extra cost.

Extra body strength for safety

The Spitfire chassis is the double-backbone, channel-section type, with outriggers. Light, but incredibly strong — braced at every point to keep the car in shape throughout the hard life a sports car should be built for.

The coach work is steel-panelled and the front bumper is mounted directly onto the chassis.

Legal Argument On Truscott Off Till January

Truscott

OTTAWA (CP)—Final argument by lawyers in the Supreme Court of Canada review of the Steven Truscott murder conviction was postponed Thursday until late January.

The postponement was requested by defence counsel G. Arthur Martin of Toronto.

Truscott was 14 when convicted of the sex slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper in a wooded area near Clinton, Ont., in 1959. He is serving a sentence of life imprisonment.

PRECEDENT

The court, which established a precedent by hearing a parade of witnesses in October in a cabinet-ordered review of the case sparked by a best-selling book, extended the deadline for filing of final written argument by counsel to Dec. 14 from Dec. 12.

The court normally rises about Dec. 20 and would not come back until Jan. 24 to open the new winter session.

TIME TO STUDY

It would not be possible to hear final oral argument until January because after the Dec. 14 deadline for written argument the court must have time to study the latter. Also, Crown and defence counsel customarily exchange their written arguments so they can prepare their cases at the final hearing.

The court can render one of three possible opinions: That the conviction be upheld, that a new trial be held, that Truscott be acquitted.

Investors Now Own Motels

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 2,000 people, mostly small investors, hold an interest in Shumbar Lodge Motels, now in receivership, it was learned Thursday.

Largest single investment in Sterling Pacific Mortgage Corp. Ltd., which provided financing for the motel chain, was about $100,000. But the average investor has between $500 and $2,000 tied up.

Shumbar Lodge operates nine motels — at Victoria, Prince George, Terrace, Smithers, Williams Lake, Kamloops, Cache Creek, Hope, Prince Rupert and Vernon. A motel planned for downtown Vancouver was not built.

FBO RATA

Certificates in Sterling Pacific bear interest at eight per cent and are redeemable on demand.

Because of the receivership, however, demands for redemption cannot be honored and certificate holders have been notified that cash distribution will be made pro rata as money is received.

Sterling, Shumbar Lodge and Paragon Development Ltd., owner of the motels, all have the same directors.

A spokesman close to company affairs said Thursday there "certainly won't be any fire sale of these motels."

A solution, he said, might be that the certificate holders become shareholders, elect a new directorate, and run the motels. "In effect, the trust certificate holders now own the motels," he said. "But they can't get their money."

Cabinet Quits On Arms

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — The government of Luxembourg, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's smallest member, resigned Thursday night over a conflict between coalition partners on ending military conscription.

The Socialists, who are associated with Social Christians in the cabinet of Social Christian Premier Pierre Werner, had asked for an end to conscription Jan. 1 next.

The Social Christians said it could not be done before July 1. Socialists said they were withdrawing their support from the government. Before a formal vote of confidence was taken, Werner said the government was resigning. He said he would hand his resignation to Grand Duke Jean today.

Canadian Killed By Viet Cong In Road Ambush

SAIGON (CP) — Viet Cong guerrillas ambushed a U.S. convoy and staged a mass kidnapping at a government New Life hamlet in sectors 200 miles apart in South Viet Nam Thursday.

Communist explosives and gunfire tore up a procession of seven trucks bearing civilian workers of a United States company, Page Communications Engineers, Inc., under military escort.

The Page firm reported from Washington that eight of its employees were killed in the ambush, including one Canadian, and that three others, one a Canadian, were wounded and "doing well" in hospital.

FROM MONTREAL

The slain Canadian was listed in Washington as Armand Fortier, 40, supervisor of plumbing and air conditioning in the multi-national Page crew of civilian technicians. His wife is Pierrette Fortier, of Montreal.

The wounded Canadian was listed as Claus Knipping, 31, an electrical foreman from Scarborough, Ont.

The ambush occurred early Thursday on a main highway six miles south of the provincial centre of Da Lat, 135 miles northeast of Saigon.

RAKED WITH GUNFIRE

The guerrillas blew up the lead vehicle with a claymore and personnel mine and then raked the convoy with machine-gun fire.

Knipping, interviewed briefly by an Associated Press reporter in hospital at Nha Trang, said he played dead after being wounded in the leg by a grenade which landed beside him as he lay in a ditch.

"I looked up from the ditch and I was looking directly at two of them (Viet Cong) . . .

AMAZING MISS

"One of them fired at me from four or five feet away. Amazingly he missed. . .

"One pulled me by the coat and turned me over. I tried to feign death and must have succeeded. Then they left me."

Knipping and the other wounded were flown to a field hospital in Nha Trang.

Deep in the Mekong delta, the Viet Cong smashed fences to raid a New Life settlement set up by the South Viet Nam government for its pacification program in territory nominally under Communist control.

A Vietnamese spokesman said the guerrillas burned 15 houses and abducted 109 persons, most of them women and children.

MONTREAL (CP) — "We were wondering what he was going to do on his birthday, in that foreign country, with all those strangers around," Pierrette Fortier said Thursday.

Thursday was her husband's 40th birthday.

"The last time I received a letter from him," Mrs. Fortier said in a telephone interview "was 10 days ago. He never failed to write home every two weeks asking us how we were managing during his absence." His children are aged nine, 11 and 17.

South Africa on Spot

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson has urged South Africa to press Rhodesia's leaders into a swift settlement of their rebellion—or risk embroilment in the crisis.

Wilson's move, reported authoritatively Thursday, pinpointed South Africa as the country holding the key to a solution. The Rhodesians would rely heavily on support and supplies from their southern neighbor if they were to survive stiffer United Nations sanctions now threatening them.

Wilson conveyed his views in a personal message to Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster. It was timed to coincide with the assignment of Herbert Bowden, Commonwealth relations secretary, on a mission to Salisbury, Rhodesia's capital.

Bowden was flying south Thursday night, nominally to confer with Britain's lone symbol of authority in Salisbury, Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs. In reality, he will be available to be seen by Premier Ian Smith if the white-minority Rhodesian leader chooses, at this stage, to call off his year-old course of independence and turn effective power back to the penitential period of five years.

In reality, he will be available to be seen by Premier Ian Smith if the white-minority Rhodesian leader chooses, at this stage, to call off his year-old course of independence and turn effective power back to the penitential period of five years.

Wilson's case was set forth as something of a counterstroke to the public intervention earlier this week by South Africa's Transport Minister Ben Schoeman. The republic, Schoeman said, would ignore any UN order imposing economic sanctions on Rhodesia and normal trade would continue.

Then he offered his own warning to Britain: Mandatory sanctions would cut across Britain's billion-dollar yearly trade with South Africa and could be fatal to the British economy.

Noose Rejected

LONDON (Reuters)—The Commons has refused by a vote of 292 to 170 to consider bringing back hanging for murder in Britain. The death penalty was abolished last year for an experimental period of five years.

U.K. Jobless Total Zooming

LONDON (UPI)—The labor ministry reported Thursday unemployment in Britain has reached more than 800,000, a rise of 105,540 in the past month alone. The government's wage and price freeze was blamed.

The report was expected to bring renewed pressure on Prime Minister Wilson for relaxation of the freeze.

Wilson told parliament Thursday he would take "full responsibility" for the squeeze.

"We shall watch the figures very carefully indeed," he told the Commons.

Red Guards in Clash

MOSCOW (UPI)—Six hundred Chinese Red Guards broke into an electrical factory and seized control of an office building after clashes with workers recently, Tass reported Thursday from Peking.

It was the second report by the Soviet news agency in two days on clashes between factory workers and Red Guards in China. Tass said Wednesday at least 50 persons were injured in a battle at a machine tool factory.

In the incident at the electrical factory, Tass said the Red Guards broke in Nov. 8, installed loudspeakers and began reading propaganda material.

It said they also ran through walls in Peking describing factory departments shouting a quotation from Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung: "The enemy is attacking—we will crush him by force."

Tass said workers have started putting up handbills on clashes with Red Guards. For their part, Tass said, the Red Guards are distributing handbills claiming that the Chinese ministry of trade uses torture to obtain confessions.

YOUNGSTERS DRILL

The Red Guards have levelled various charges at government and Communist party officials they oppose.

Despite cold weather in Peking, Tass said streets are still crowded with hundreds of thousands of Red Guards.

"Teenagers and children, who feel the cold, are undergoing military training under the command of army and security forces," the agency said.

Move Regretted

Griffin Won't Run

Michael Griffin, an alderman in 1961 and 1962 since August of 1965, announced Thursday he would not seek re-election on Dec. 10.

In fairness to his family and other associates in the family business, he said, he felt it necessary to "bow out for the present."

His decision was generally regretted at City Hall.

GREATLY MISSED

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott said that Ald. Griffin would be greatly missed on city council. A candidate for the office of mayor, Ald. Clyde Savage agreed.

"Having worked with him on council, I am aware of his many qualities as a leader," he said. "He did far more for Victoria than most people realize."

WELL AWARE

"We members of council are well aware of the pressures which brought about Ald. Griffin's decision and deeply regret that such pressures could cost the city the services of such a valuable man," Ald. Savage said.

Ald. Hugh Stephen, another candidate for mayor, was sorry to see Ald. Griffin go.

"He is a fine man and a fine alderman, and I sincerely regret his decision. He will be a great loss to city council," Ald. Stephen said.

He said he hopes to do research in Texas for about three months and publish his findings. Mr. Pollard said he expects to work closely with Mr. Jones.

Alderman Race Record Tied

Entry of W. G. Smith to the city aldermanic race Thursday brought the candidate list to a total of 11, equalling the 1960 figure which is believed to be a record in Victoria.

Mr. Smith, who has been active in trying to prevent the broadcasting of piped music in the 700 block Yates Street, said that although the combatting of noise and pollution has been his main concern, he had, in addition, the experience of 40 years of successful business management to offer the city.

"I am proud that my children are growing up in the finest part of North America. I love this city and would welcome an opportunity to serve it," he added.

Other candidates for city council include the incumbents, Ald. Cecil Parrott and Ald. Percy Frampton, Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie, Lloyd Clarkson, Ian Stewart, Charles Kingsfield, Hugh Ramsay, W. A. Scott, Eric Garman and Charles Thompson.

On Water Tunnel

Diggers Still Driving

By A. R. MURPHY

Driving ahead at the rate of about 50 feet a day, hard-rock miners have bored an 8½-foot tunnel three miles into the Goldstream watershed. They have 2½ miles to go.

Greater Victoria Water District Commissioner Ronald Upward said Thursday the work was going as well right now as it has since the contract was awarded in September, 1963.

He estimated that it could be two more years before the 5½-mile, $4,500,000 tunnel was completed. When it is, however, there will be enough water available to triple the 15,000,000 gallons used on an average day in Greater Victoria.

The project has been beset by troubles and breakdowns over the more than two years since miners have been actually driving the tunnel from the Sooke Lake reservoir on one side and Japan Gulch on the other.

The firm which took the contract in 1963, International Construction Company, was plagued by troubles, skyrocketing labor and equipment costs and several major breakdowns of the $250,000 mechanical mole upon which it pinned its hopes for a fast, efficient job.

'Bad Ground' Behind

"There's one compensation, though," Mr. Upward said. "The rock is much better. It breaks cleaner and we are not having to use the steel sets (supporting braces) that we were required to use in the bad ground."

The "bad ground" was slate, shale which would not break clean and sharp in the blasting at the face, and which had a tendency to slip and fall, with consequent danger to the miners.

Another bright spot in the water district was its timber operation, the commissioner said.

The district has had a full-scale logging operation going for years, harvesting prime timber from the watershed land it controls. Last year this operation made $350,000.

Mr. Upward said Thursday the district contracted with B.C.

'Schooling Depends On Cash'

Improvement of education in Greater Victoria depends on the willingness of the public to pay for it and the permission of the department of education to spend money, said trustee Peter Bunn on Thursday.

He told the Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher Council at Central Junior high school that PTAs can do a major job of public information to help the school system.

Mr. Bunn added: "If the department of education does not permit us to build the schools or buy the equipment we need, if it cuts down on the size of future referendums, then this will reflect on the quality of the education your children and mine will receive."

Mr. Bunn reviewed the recently-issued Hartwick-Downey report on the administration of Greater Victoria's school system.

The board is already implementing some recommendations of the report, he said. Library allocations will be double, elementary school counselors are being hired, non-professional teaching aides will be hired, and a trustee-teacher co-operative committee has been set up.

"I think there is a new feeling in the district," he said.

Aquatic Oil Rig
Gets New Berth

The monster sea-going oil rig being built by Victoria Machinery Depot was towed to E jetty in Esquimalt Harbor Thursday from the Company's No. 2 yard on Dallas Road.

Two Island Tug and Barge barges took the huge $9,000,000 rig in tow and docked it in the sheltered harbor in the berth vacated by the weathership Vancouver Thursday.

The company wharf on Dallas Road has been badly pounded by westerly winds during past weeks and heavy winds two weekends ago kept a crew standing by all night while Island Tug and Barge anchored two line barges off the wharf to act as a breakwater.

The rig will be left in Esquimalt Harbor while the next phase of construction takes place. Hago caisson sections known as pepper pots which will be placed in position atop the existing 60-foot high caissons are already on the jetty. They were built on barges then shipped around to the jetty where the heavy duty drydock cranes hoisted them ashore.

Silent Vigil in City
Raps Viet Nam War

A silent vigil organized by the Victoria Committee for Canadian Responsibility in Viet Nam will gather at the corner of Douglas and View Streets between 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Said spokesman Lloyd Brereton:

"We're a small group—but we hope that we will draw the attention of the public to the vigil, and become recognized for our views."

The vigil will be held every Saturday morning, and Mr. Brereton said he hopes the public will join in—it only for a few minutes.

Pamphlets will be available to those who wish to read of the committee's protest of the war in Viet Nam. And there will be a placard displayed: "Vigil of Victoria Citizens for Peace in Viet Nam."

Navy Ships

Escorts
Home
Today

Families will be welcome when the three sub-hunting destroyer escorts, HMCS Qu'Appelle, Mackenzie and Saskatchewan arrive in HMC Dockyard at 11 a.m. today.

On their way up the coast, the three Canadian destroyers passed the Coast Guard weather ship Vancouver, which is off to Hawaii and the waters they just vacated.

The trouble-plagued $12,000,000 weather ship has just about run out of the bugs which kept technicians hopping during the past few months.

LAST STEP

The Hawaii cruise is the last step in her shakedown program and if all goes well she will take her place on weather station Papa in the latter part of January.

The three destroyers returning today were on manoeuvres with units of the United States fleet, which included an aircraft carrier and worked as a hunter killer group.

They took part in a three-phase exercise, which included escorting merchant ships through a series of narrow channels while being opposed by a conventional and nuclear submarine and several ships simulating torpedo boat attacks.

Next job was preventing the passage of two submarines through a narrow channel. This exercise lasted a day and a half, with the Qu'Appelle at one point maintaining contact with the nuclear sub for close to three hours.

Last phase of the exercise took place in a wide-open area with the three Canadian and seven American destroyers working with the fleet's aircraft carrier patrolling the area.

GOOD WORKOUT Aim of the exercise was to stop submarines from surfacing and launching missiles at targets ashore.

The exercise was termed a good workout by Commander H. D. Joy, captain of the Qu'Appelle.

And as the three destroyers steam into harbor, the crew of the last remaining ocean escort on the Pacific coast, HMCS Beacon Hill, is making final arrangements for a training cruise starting Monday.

During the two-week cruise, she will travel along the West Coast of the U.S. providing training in seamanship, navigation and operation of a warship at sea.

'Treasure Van'

Cougar Reports Challenged

Cougar — myth or menace? In recent weeks nearly a dozen "sightings" of the ornery beast have been reported to police and wildlife authorities.

All the "sightings," some of which are more accurately described as "soundings," have proved false.

"Personally, I feel it's doubtful cougars would come this far south on the Island," said Saanich Police Deputy Chief Joe Armstrong.

"If cougars are coming onto the peninsula, I imagine they are old ones who are no longer able to cope with hunting the game birds up in the interior of the Island," he said.

These are the sort of animals which, it is claimed, have made recent kills of sheep and, more recently, a collection of pet guinea pigs.

"There have been exceptions, of course — the time when a cougar was shot on the steps of the public library (April 26, 1956) and the other occasion when one was shot outside the liquor store on Government Street."

At the time (June 8, 1961) the present Government Liquor Store building was a Mc and Mc retail store and the doorway it was shot in no longer exists.

Truth is, while prints may have been found, and cries heard, nobody in the past few weeks has actually sighted a cougar.

Regional protection officer Bob Sinclair says he and his team always check out these sightings.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the reports turn out to be false," he says.

Most recent report of possible cougars was turned into Saanich police by Mrs. K. C. Cronk, 4316 Blenkinsop. Mrs. Cronk says she believes tracks of cougars have been found on her property, and she has heard their shrill cry somewhere off in the bush by Lost Lake — on which her property fronts.

But Charles Giguere of the Provincial Museum says one should not be afraid of cougars attacking humans.

They are shy, he says, and usually disappear into the bush if human beings are in the vicinity.

These delectable hot cheese fritters can be prepared well ahead of serving time. Store them in the

Delicious Morsels

Hot Cheese Fritters Easy to Make

French peasants adore raclettes, warm melted "scraps" from toasted chunks of cheese, eaten with boiled potatoes or spread on bread. This yellow cheddar cheese is combined with blue cheese for Heidi by her old hermit grandfather in the delightful story of the little Swiss orphan. Fromage Fritters simply present "fried" cheese in a more elegant manner. Golden toes or spread on bread. This yellow cheddar cheese is combined with blue cheese for Heidi by her old hermit grandfather in the delightful cheeses is rolled into balls, crusted with crumbs and then "frittered" in bubbly hot fat.

All of the mixing and shaping of the appetizers can be accomplished well ahead of serving time. They are better if they "rest" anyway, so store them in the refrigerator. Deep fat fry them just before the first guests arrive. When served quite warm, they are morsels to tantalize an epicure.

Contrast the hot cheese dainties with a tray of mellow two-year-old cheddar cheese. Aged cheese has excellent consistency and provocative flavor. It goes best with plain crispy fluffy crackers. Provide little picks for the fritters, a cheese knife and picks for the cheese and let each guest help themself.

FROMAGE FRITTERS

Two eggs, beaten; two 3-oz. pkgs. cream cheese, softened; 1/4-lb. grated cheddar cheese (about 2 cups); 4-oz. blue cheese, crumbled; 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs; 2 eggs, beaten; 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs.

Mix in a 1 1/2-quart bowl, 2 eggs, cheeses and 1/2 cup bread crumbs. Roll into about 40 balls. Dip balls in 2 eggs and then 1/2 cup bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat heated to 375 degrees (high moderate) 1 to 1 1/2 minutes, or until balls float to surface. Serve immediately.

St. George's Fete Realizes $2,200

Delectable foods starred at the annual bazaar of St. George the Martyr Church in Cadboro Bay. Mrs. Carlton Collard and Mrs. E. W. Moore were general conveners of the successful affair which realized the sum of $2,200.

A special favorite was the delicatessen stall which featured generous slices of turkey, ham and beef, sausage rolls, salads of every kind, and jellies and chutneys. Waiting to be popped in the oven for the family dinner were tasty salmon loaves in meal-size portions. Mrs. E. Smith was in charge of this stall.

Mrs. L. Williams convened the candy stall which was highlighted with boxes and boxes of delicious home-made candies.

Featured on the luncheon menu, which was a special boon to hungry shoppers, were hot caseroles, salad, and apple crisp dessert. Mrs. Ralph Newstead convened the luncheon and light afternoon tea.

Other conveners were, Mrs. E. H. Strickland, home cooking; Mrs. W. D. Osborn, gifts; Mrs. John Robinson, aprons; Mrs. Darcus Hodder, plants; Mrs. O. M. Jones, books; Mrs. E. W. Moore, children's toys; Mrs. W. Melville, children's woolsens; Mrs. W. M. Carmichael, super-tuties.

Ann Landers

Dear Readers: In yesterday's column I printed a collection of letters from angry wives who roasted, toasted and broiled their "money-hungry, power-mad, egocentric Wall Street Warriors" for expending their energies on the financial and professional battlefield and leaving nothing for the Home Front.

The letters were in response to a plea from a dead business man. He wrote, "Life is rough in the asphalt jungle. Competition is terrific. When I come home at night after a murderous day at the office my wife gets suspicious if I don't get excited at the sight of her bending over the kitchen sink. She thinks maybe I've got some dame somewhere."

Today's letter, in my opinion, is the best and most inclusive response I've had. It's for all Wall Street Warriors. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a Wall Street Warrior for over 20 years so I feel qualified to speak about the successful business or professional man who willingly (perhaps eagerly) sacrifices his husband-father role in exchange for the exhilaration and the rewards of the Market Place.

These men would not have it any other way. The excitement of the daily battle on the Professional Front or the Money Front is sufficiently ego-warming and stimulating that they don't need anything else to fill their lives.

Because their values are warped (this happened long before marriage) these men lack the true understanding of what a husband-wife relationship ought to be. If his wife becomes cold from waiting, or if a wife resorts to a part-time replacement because she is lonely, the Warrior couldn't care less. He is relieved that he doesn't have to be with her because he has already discovered younger and more fascinating substitutes in his work, or in the cities he visits — on business, of course.

Sex to him has nothing to do with love. He doesn't even try to let himself as woman off. Intimacy outside of marriage means fun with no commitment. Moreover it's a great morale booster for the middle-aged male who wonders if he's losing his punch.

The Warrior lives in a world of work, and he adores it. Even his play must in some way be related to his work. A wife and children do not belong in this world. Anyone who cannot contribute to his battle gains is relegated to the periphery.

No one will ever persuade me that a lack of interest in the marriage bed stems from working too hard. This bit of folklore was invented by a man who must have known better. Any one who regards this as a problem of the rich had better think again. It exists at every economic level. The man who has spent himself elsewhere and is tired when he comes home, got that way because he chose to.

After years of loneliness and soul-searching ("Where did I fail?") I confess that I wish I had married another kind of man. I would gladly forego my large home, the cars in the garage, my fine furs and jewelry and the club memberships in exchange for a husband who will attend church with his family, show some interest in our children and be available for the little confidences that make marriage the special relationship that God intended it to be. Just sign me — LOST: ONE HOMEFRONT. GAINED: MUCH INSIGHT.

Speaker Advocates Safety Measures

The use of preventive measures, rather than the more costly remedial course, was advocated by Mr. Denis Henrickson when he spoke on Pollution Problems of Vancouver Island when the Victoria Council of Women met recently in the Dominion Hotel.

The speaker stressed that the pollution of air and water can be deterred by the proper safety measures being enforced from the beginning. Mr. Henrickson pointed out that although industry is needed to develop resources and bring prosperity to local residents it should not be allowed to jeopardize the future requirements for ideal living conditions.

The speaker was thanked by health chairman Mrs. M. Polard.

Samples of fluorescent arm bands, after a demonstration by Mrs. H. MacKenzie, were received by representatives of member organizations so that the use of the safety arm bands could be shown to their own groups. All members were urged to use them on streets during the hours of darkness.

President Mrs. Bert Noel spoke on the international news-letter and proposed that the next meeting be set aside to discuss the resolutions passed at the international conference in Tehran at which Canada was represented by its national president Mrs. H. H. Steen, Vancouver.

Radio and television chairman Mrs. T. B. Lowe spoke on national resolutions which involved freedom of speech, the questionable types of interviews permitted on television and the Fowler Report on broadcasting.

Italian Farmlands Flooded; Cities Facing New Danger

ROME (UPI) — Rampaging rivers brought fresh damage to hard-hit Tuscany Thursday and the death toll in Italy's worst flood disaster continued rising 20 days after tragedy first struck.

The River Ombrone, which flooded two-thirds of the city of Grosseto Nov. 4, streamed out into the countryside again Thursday, flooding farmland and posing a fresh threat to the city's 50,000 inhabitants.

UPPER STOREYS
Loudspeakers warned residents of endangered suburbs to flee to upper storeys of buildings until the river's main crest passed the city.

Authorities considered, then dropped, a plan to dynamite a newly-repaired section of the Rome-Grosseto highway so the water could flow out of the fields around Grosseto.

Cut Paving Bill Says Gagliardi

VANCOUVER (CP) — Highway Minister Gagliardi has urged 200 road-building experts to redouble their research efforts to cut down road paving costs.

He told a Canadian Technical Asphalt Association meeting the asphalt industry must press ahead if it wants to keep abreast of the competing concrete industry.

113. But at least three more deaths — and possibly six — were reported from various parts of Italy in the past two days.

ROME SUNNY

Sunshine returned to Rome and Naples Thursday after heavy rains flooded streets and basements in both cities Wednesday. In Rome, which had 4.6 inches of rain in 24 hours, police and firemen were alert for possible emergencies in Prima Porta, a northern suburb which is flooded almost every winter by a small local stream.

LEVEL FALLS

Water in some Prima Porta streets reached three feet Wednesday night but was down to a few inches Thursday.

Small floods and landslides were reported all over the Naples area. Families of 25 fishermen were evacuated from Marina Di Puolo, threatened by a large slide.

Alberta Move

Liquor Sales Idea Killed by Socreds

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Social Credit League Thursday defeated a resolution calling for selling of liquor in Alberta to be turned over to private enterprise.

Several delegates expressed fear that control would be lost over liquor sales. But others suggested "we have reached the point where we should put into practice what we preach (free enterprise)."

FIRST NIGHT

Delegates dropped as "non-fusing" parts of the resolution urging liquor be taxed as a luxury and sold through a corporation in which Albertans have first right of investment.

Provincial Treasurer A. O. Aalberg said Albertans can invest in breweries and distilleries. The Alberta Liquor Control Board which handles sales, is only a regulating body.

At the closing session of the league's three-day annual convention, delegates dropped from one resolution a suggestion for establishment of a provincial family planning service.

But they approved the remainder of the resolution, seeking amendments to the criminal code section which now bans sale or advertising of methods of birth control.

MORE LEGAL AID

Among resolutions passed were calls for extended legal aid, a study of needs essential for a national level of social security and a consolidated anti-juvenile delinquency program.

Another resolution produced by a convention seminar on social needs called for extension of provincial welfare services to Indians with costs shared by the province and Ottawa. It was passed.

No Abbreviations

Telephone Book Bigger, Clearer

This year's new telephone book seems a bigger edition by far than those printed in previous years.

There are 27 columns of Mc and Mac this year, compared with 20½ last.

There are eight columns of Smith, compared with six last; 3½ columns of Brown, 2½ last year; four columns of Jones, 2½ last year.

In fact, names listed have jumped from 60,542 last year to 63,542 this year.

The size of the print has been increased from six point to seven point — Making it considerably easier to read.

It also means that fewer names can be listed on each page.

All of which makes for a thicker book.

NO PREFIXES

First account listed in the new book is the A-Go-Go Club on Ward Street.

Last Victoria listing is a J. Zynger, at 251 Cook Street.

And in between, you will see that the EVs and GRs are no longer.

They have been replaced by 38s and 47s — making up a total book of seven-digit numbers.

MORE COPIES

In all, some 57,000 copies of the Victoria area book will be distributed by the end of this week — an increase over last year's distribution of about 5,000. It lists numbers in Greater Victoria, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Ganges and the Gulf Islands.

NEW COVER

Of course, most noticeable change of all is right on the front of the book.

Instead of the color drawing of the reading of the proclamation uniting B.C. and Vancouver Island 100 years ago, this year there is a color photograph of the spectacular Shannon Falls near Squamish.

Oil, Gas Sales High

British Columbia made $4,477,900 Thursday from the sale of Crown-owned oil and gas rights.

The fourth and last sale of the year brought B.C. a total net revenue of nearly $15,000,000 for 1966, about $2,000,000 more than was earned from this source in 1965.

Deputy mines minister Ken Blakey told nearly a score of oil men gathered here to find out which companies were the successful bidders that "it was an excellent sale so far as we are concerned."

NEW FIELD

The new Inga oilfield along the Alaska Highway about 42 miles northwest of Fort St. John, attracted the highest bids Wednesday.

This 336-acre parcel was acquired by Pacific Petroleum Ltd. for $165,625.50. Average price for this lease amounted to $506.98 an acre.

Highest price for a drilling reservation was $516,625.50 paid jointly by Imperial Oil Enterprises Ltd., Pacific Petroleum Ltd., Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. and Whitehall Canadian Oil Ltd. for an area southeast of the Inga oilfield.

Company of Canada Ltd. for a parcel along the westerly trend of a geological formation which contains the Rainbow oil wells Sanft Oil Ltd. and Aquitaine in Alberta.

Oil companies paid $4,430,185.75 in bonuses for the parcels offered for sale, along with $47,715 in statutory fees and rentals.

Twenty-one lease blocks sold for $1,386,500, five drilling reservations for $1,123,052 and nine permits for $1,920,632.

Public Works Minister William Chant, who is acting minister of mines while Donald Brothers is campaigning in the by-election at Cariboo, said the satisfactory results of the sale offered continued optimism for the discovery and development of oil and gas fields in northeastern B.C.

He said the next sale of oil and gas rights would be held late in January, 1967.

Hanoi City Disciplined, Dominated by Silence

PARIS (AP) — A reporter who recently visited Hanoi wrote Thursday that the North Vietnamese capital is a city dominated by silence, but calm and disciplined. Jacques Decroix, writing in the newspaper Le Monde, said: "The silence is what is striking in Hanoi. What a difference from Saigon, where a recent visitor was stupefied by the infernal noise of the streets."

Green Light

VERNON (CP) — The Okanagan Regional College Council meeting has given the green light for its $5,124,208 referendum to be presented to ratepayers in the participating school districts.

Decision on Trial Due on Monday

Decision on whether to commit a Victoria man for trial or a charge of rape was ordered until Monday by Magistrate William Ostler after a preliminary hearing in central magistrate's court Thursday.

Vernon Humphrey, 620 Huxley is the accused man. The charge said consent of a 20-year-old Colwood area girl the night of Sept. 15 was exported by fear of bodily harm.

Magistrate Ostler asked the Crown, "Where is evidence of fear of bodily harm?" He said the statement of the girl that she was afraid for her life was not prima facie evidence under the law.

AMENDED

The first information laid by the prosecution had charged intercourse without consent, but the information had been amended by the Crown to read consent under fear of bodily harm.

The incident was reported in evidence to have taken place near an Indian cemetery off Admirals Road.

Magistrate Ostler's decision will be delivered at 10 a.m. Monday.

It was a bad day for the Crown as Magistrate Ostler labelled a charge against two youths for causing a disturbance in a public place, not a dwelling house, "the most astonishing... I have ever had the misfortune to look at."

Barry Thomas Bruce, 18, of 1126 Oxford and John Wallace Thompson, 20, of 114 Ontario, had pleaded guilty to the charge in the afternoon, following a not guilty plea in the morning.

TOOK PILLS

Evidence was that the pair had been carrying on in a drunken manner in the hallway of an apartment house at 349 Cook at 1:35 p.m. Wednesday. The arresting officer said both appeared to be under the influence of sleeping pills.

Bruce admitted having taken pills and was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Magistrate Ostler said the information was "a farago of section 160a and 160d." Section a, causing a disturbance, stipulates "not being in a dwelling house," and section d deals with disturbing the peace and quiet of the occupants of a dwelling house.

The information was withdrawn and the two youths were discharged.

Kenneth Mindenhall, 19, of CFB Esquimalt, was fined a total of $600 and had his driver's licence suspended for nine months after he pleaded guilty to public mischief, impaired driving and driving while under licence suspension.

Mindenhall rammed a lamp post on Douglas near Roderick at 12:35 a.m. with his motorcycle and gave the investigating officer a false name, stating also he had been struck from the rear by a car.

Court was told Mindenhall has his licence suspended Nov. 7 after four speeding convictions in a short period.

Sailors Reach Mexico

Two fledgling mariners who left Victoria bound for Esquimalt, Mexico have arrived after 31 days at sea.

Karl Darwin, 19, and his crew Miss Jackie Shaw and Beverly Stephens were blown far into the Pacific in unfavorable winds sailing their engineless boat the Pagan. The journey is about 2,000 miles.

In a letter to his mother Mrs. E. C. Darwin, of Lasqueti Island, he said they would have to revise their sailing schedule after taking so long at the first leg of their journey.

ACAPULCO NEXT

Next stop will be Acapulco after they receive provisioning money from Canada.

Beverly Stephens was taken ill and transferred to San Francisco hospital early in November.

The long journey in the Pacific hasn't discouraged either remaining member of the crew.

Logger Freed In Murder

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A 23-year-old Merritt logger was found not guilty of non-capital murder by a B.C. Supreme Court jury in the bludgeoning slaying of another man near Boston Bar Aug. 1.

The jury deliberated for less than 30 minutes before deciding to free Frank Joseph Garcia. He had been charged in connection with the death of Isaac Charlie on the North Bend Indian reserve.

Andrew Bosch, 24, of 2035 Oak Bay, pleaded guilty to malicious mischief and was remanded to Friday for sentence.

The evidence said Bosch had driven his flat through the door in a cleaning establishment at 2580 Quadra, at 1:30 a.m. Thursday. Bosch said he "got mad at something."

A breathalyzer test showed he had been drinking.

Indo Johi and Priton Uppal of 2546 Wark pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and Dec. 1 was set as the date to fix a trial time.

The complainant, Davinda Kaur Dhillon of 2607 Wark, asked the charge to be withdrawn. She said the matter was a family dispute which had since been resolved.

Crown prosecutor John McIntyre said he felt there might be compulsion prompting the request.

Magistrate Ostler agreed the facts should be heard.

Clifford Perford of 4140 Birtles, Wayne Winger of 3163 Alder and Robert Haymar of 2924 Blackwood pleaded guilty.

Edith Hancock of 645 Goyette was fined $15 after pleading guilty to having horses at large.

The charge, under a Saanich bylaw, was laid after three of her horses broke loose Wednesday and did $100 worth of damage to a lawn and garden.

Ray Tillyer of COGS Vancouver was remanded to Dec. 16 for sentence on a guilty plea to careless driving.

He pleaded not guilty to a second charge of assault, through his attorney, Dermot Ower-Flood.

Trial on the assault charge was also for Dec. 16.

John Rogers, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to obtaining $2 worth of gasoline under false pretences, using a credit card under the name of John Reynolds.

He was remanded to Friday for sentence.

William Edward Martin of 647 Ralph had his sentence suspended and was bound over on his own recognizance in the amount of $500 for one year.

He was found guilty earlier of theft under $50 for taking parts from a stereo machine in a Saanich residence, Oct. 19.

Garden Notes

Look to Your Vines

By M. V. CHESNUT

Now that their display is over, the leaf-losing climbing vines on the trellis and the house wall are beginning to look rather sorry for themselves. I look to get in a few licks on them at this stage in their growth, pruning where necessary and tying them in to cover any thinly furnished areas on the wall.

Climbing and rambler roses over the porch are probably the most common house adornment and have made rather better than normal growth this year. The more vigorous kinds such as Dorothy Perkins and Excelsa have pushed up enough shoots from the base so that all the old flowered canes can be cut out completely, just as you would prune raspberries, and the new young canes tied in.

Some of the other popular varieties like Albertine, Emily Grey and Paul's Scarlet, push out their new shoots not from the base but from various points along the length of the old canes. These are pruned more lightly, cutting back the old canes to a point just above a vigorous young side shoot.

The clematis is a tricky subject to prune, as each kind requires a different treatment and a different time of pruning. No great harm can come from letting the vine go its own way without any pruning at all, however, and unless you know the name of your clematis and just how it should be pruned, your best bet is a policy of masterly inaction, just leaving the thing alone, but tying in any long loose shoots.

Honeysuckle, the summer-flowering and winter-flowering jasmine, and the wall-trained forsythias are all trouble-free plants that need very little attention beyond tying in new growth to its supports. Forsythia tends to become overcrowded in time, but this is easily controlled simply by helping yourself to lots of flowering sprays at blooming time to fill the vases and bowls in the house. Or cut bare shoots in February for forcing into bloom indoors.

A few of our vines are not reliably hardy here and need a bit of protection over the roots in severe weather. Salurnum crispum, the Flowering Potato Vine, is one of these, along with the trumpet-flowered Tecoma. These vines should really have a sunny wall facing south or southwest, with a covering of dried leaves or bracken over the roots in winter.

The Passion Flower is an unpredictable critter, flourishing in a bleak, windswept location in one garden while expiring miserably in a sheltered spot. With this subject, it is safest to presume yours is a tender strain and pamper it as far as Teacoma.

Fruit trees invariably require some attention after the season's crop has been harvested. Branches which were broken by the weight of fruit or by careless harvesting should be cut back to just above a well-placed side shoot. Clean, smooth cuts made at this time of the year will heal more quickly than those made after the turn of the year.

On some trees, the branches are often bent down by the weight of the crop and remain in this "weeping" position after the crop has been taken off. This offers a nice opportunity for a little renewal pruning. A wood bud on the highest part of the arching branch will grow away vigorously if the part beyond this point is cut away, and the new shoot will become the new branch tip, growing upward and outward and correcting the previous drooping habit. Mind you, this isn't always desirable. An arching branch will always bear more fruit than one growing upward, and the remedial measures for drooping branches should only be applied when the weeping habit is extreme, or when the tree is bearing too much fruit for its own good.

ARTHUR HOPPE Listens to Reagan

Judge Hardy for President

SAN DIEGO — Mr. Ronald Reagan came down to San Diego to deliver his first public address since his landslide election as Governor of California. And I think he's going to make a great governor.

He certainly made a great candidate. All during the campaign he was boyish and charming, facing his speeches with little jokes on himself, which he'd tell with a toss of his head, an arched eyebrow and a wry grin.

So you couldn't help liking him — the way you couldn't help liking Mickey Rooney when he played Andy Hardy.

Of course, some Californians worried about this. "He's certainly likeable," they'd say,

"but who wants to be governed by Andy Hardy?" Well, I'm glad to report there's no cause for concern on this score. These doubters of little faith clearly underestimated Reagan's ability. Reagan, the candidate, and Reagan, the Governor, are two different things. You could see the change already.

Oh, the way Reagan, the Governor, strode purposefully to the microphone in his conservative blue suit, incorruptible white shirt and stolid dark tie. And, oh, how sternly he lectured everyone on the responsibilities of a citizen, the dignity of individual initiative, the propriety of morality and the virtues of virtue.

Well, we all play roles in life and I'm glad Reagan has now chosen this one. As I say, I think Judge Hardy will make a great Governor. You can't help admiring Judge Hardy.

Indeed, the only thing odd about Reagan's first public address since his landslide election as Governor was the audience he chose to deliver it to: The Associated Press Managing Editors Convention — 500 influential newspaper editors.

But after Reagan, the Governor, made his dignified speech, the first thing he did was to say he hoped there wouldn't be any questions asked about his national political ambitions.

"I am no longer a candidate for anything," he said.

And, oh, the way he said it — so boyish and charming, with a toss of his head, an arched eyebrow and a wry grin.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Flops Dog Morse

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Robert Morse has had the worst kind of luck with his movies. The first one, Honeymoon Motel, with Robert Goulet, was a disaster. The Loved One was a total flop. And now I hear that his Oh Dad, Poor Dad, I Am a Rascal, which was remade again almost from scratch, may be sold directly to television. All could be retrieved for Robert if his film version of How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying is as good as the play.

Shari Lewis, the tiny TV and night club star, is moving back, stock and puppets to Hollywood in February. . . . There was no publicity, at the request of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, when she took her son, John, and another boy of his age to see The Fantasticks, which has been running longer than John-John.

Ginger Rogers may decide to live permanently in the East. When you have tasted success on Broadway as Ginger has in Hello Dolly, it is difficult to return to the soporific climate of Hollywood.

James Bond has been declared an international menace by Pakistan. The famed Ian Fleming creation is credited with having a bad effect on international relations. I can almost hear Ian laughing.

I felt sorry for one dancer in Les Ballets Africains. She had small statistics but had to keep wiggling as though she hadn't. What a show. What energy. What dancing. Wilder than the Russians, but just as good.

Dana Andrews is talking of starring on stage in A Warm Body, and on the road in Generation. This is the logical step after starring in films. After the road? Television—if you are lucky to land a series. . . . which reminds me, Sissy Spacek could have been in The Apple Tree which is a hit on Broadway. He had to decline because of a television contract. That is over, and he will make his stage debut in New York in January in Come Live With Me.

Tammy Grimes was saying she and her husband, Jeremy Blake, after a few days back in New York, decided to sell their home in Malibu for an apartment in Manhattan. Tammy was completely honest about the demise of her television show. "Usually," she said, "the network wants four shows before making a decision. I was given my notice after two."

Alan Arkin, director and superb comedy actor, signed for another movie version of Inspector Clouzot. . . . I hear that Simone Signoret's performance in The Deadly Affair will make everyone in London forget the fiasco of her Macbeth. The film is based on the John Le Carre novel—and is, of course, a spy story.

Peggy Lee and Jimmy Durante are talking of joining up for a stage appearance in a play by a Mr. Towne. . . . The reviews were murderous but Natalie Wood's Penelope is doing great business at the Music Hall in New York. Could turn out to be another What's New Pussycat?

If you think Back Street was drunk in a party scene in Seconds, he was. Director John Frankenheimer is a stickler for realism.

John Wayne's wife, Pilar, packed the kids and took off for Durango, Mexico for a holiday with her husband who is starring there in The War Wagon. . . . Adam (Batman) West will have to invent a special machine to keep secretary Judy Smith from accepting dates with Steve Blumauer, of Screen Gems and part owner of the San Francisco Giants.

Quote from Jean Crawford: "When I work I don't care whether it's hot or cold, but when I get home from the studio, everything better be hot." . . . Anthony Quinn is adding yet another project to his agenda — The Friends, with his Zorba the Greek producer, Anis Nebra.

Margaret Davis found fame as the wild dancer in Black Orpheus. She is now starring on the stage in Paris in Thornton Wilder's play, The Skin of Our Teeth, which Tallulah Bankhead did on Broadway and Vivien Leigh in London. The three stars are entirely different, but can apparently play the same role.

Viet Nam: The Truth

SYDNEY HARRIS

On the final day of the Manila talks, and they couldn't see how burning their villages was going to bring them a better life.

They regarded the conference as purely political, a prop to support Premier Ky and his military cadre. Neither communism nor democracy, as ideologies, mean much to them, and they feel that neither China nor the U.S. cares about their welfare, but are just using the country as a bloody chessboard for power politics.

If the war continues much longer, they are convinced their country will be ruined, no matter which side "wins." And they have no more faith in their own political leaders than they have in Washington or Peking.

Most of the people there, he said, were supremely indifferent to it. All they wanted to do was survive. About 80 per cent of the population live in vil-

This correspondent's cool and candid report reminded me of an Associated Press dispatch from Saigon I clipped out of the paper this summer. It ran:

"North Viet Nam's order for partial mobilization and a stepped up war in South Viet Nam brought shrugs to Saigon today. Today is Sunday, the people go to the movies," said a young Vietnamese, who had succeeded in obtaining a discharge from the army.

"Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was sailing off a scenic island in the South China Sea. Many of his generals were either gambling, visiting friends, or basking in the sun near swimming pools. What kind of war is this, in which the U.S. is "saving" a people who show no desire to be saved, "protecting" a country by burning its villages and destroying its crops, promoting "democracy" by supporting militarists and opportunists, and "defending law and order" by violating three treaties and the U.S. Constitution?

If it feels it must fight, if it feels that communism must be opposed everywhere at all times at all costs, let it say so and do so; but let it not mouth the cheap and transparent chant that it is doing so because it cares about the Vietnamese or an abstraction called "social justice." Nobody, not even its uneasy allies, believes it.

No Acid on Sunday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver church will swing tonight with the way-out sights and sounds of Vancouver's first psychedelic service. Combining electronic music, swirling lights, go-go girls and poetry readings, the unique religious experiments is billed by its clerical co-sponsors as "a trip without acid."

Acid is slang for the psychedelic, or mind-expanding, drug LSD. The CBC will video-tape tonight's service at the University Hill United Church for presentation on the Sunday program. The service is the project of the Rev. Harold MacKay of University Hill and Rev. Jim McKibbin of St. Andrew's Anglican Church.

"We're trying to demonstrate you can have a trip without acid," said Mr. McKibbin. He emphasized that the service is a liturgical experiment and not intended as a gimmick. "I'm concerned in unlocking people so that they might be free and more open to this world."

CANADA SHUFFLING UP TO MAO'S DOOR

Pearson

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada will consider formal recognition of Red China if attempts to get that country into the United Nations fail, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday night.

"It may not only be a question of Canada recognizing Communist China, it may be a question of Communist China recognizing Canada," he said in a major foreign policy statement.

Earlier in the day Mr. Pearson nodded affirmatively when New Democrat Frank Howard (Skeena) asked:

"Would this government be willing to approach the government of the Peoples' Republic of China to see whether we might not have a two-China policy in so far as the exchange of diplomats between ourselves and that country is concerned?"

The prime minister's statement—particularly the vigor with which he made it—seemed to go closer than ever before to announcing a policy of recognition of the Communist regime.

It came at the end of his speech in reply to a question from New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Pearson said Canada could recognize China in one of two ways: voting for her admission to the United Nations, or bilateral negotiation.

"If this is impossible at present (in the UN) and we make no progress on this score, then we have to consider the other form of recognition," he said. "That is all I should like to say about it at the present time."

However it could still be at least a year before recognition of Mao Tse-tung's regime takes place, because it could be that long before the UN disposes of an Italian suggestion to set up a special committee to study the problem.

It is understood Canada will vote for the Italian resolution if another more progressive one does not appear to have a chance of being adopted.

Political lather: Quesnel barber Joe Winofsky, Ben Ludditt, Candidate Bonner

'Playing Politics'

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault Thursday accused Vancouver Mayor Bill Ratelle of playing politics in publicly supporting Attorney-General Robert Bonner in Monday's byelection in the Cariboo.

Mr. Ratelle, Liberal candidate who was defeated by Mr. Bonner in Vancouver Point Grey in the 1963 general election, Wednesday sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, urging Cariboo voters to support Mr. Bonner in next week's byelection.

And while Mr. Perrault was returning to Vancouver after helping Liberal candidate Lee Skip with his campaign in the Cariboo, Premier Bennett used the mayor's telegram as ammunition at a packed election rally in Quesnel.

Peking Rejects Canada's Plan

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China rejected today Canada's two-Chinas proposal to seat Peking in the United Nations. Under the Canadian plan, Nationalist China would remain in the UN. "This is nothing but a revival of the U.S. imperialist plot to create two Chinas and such a plot will never succeed," said Peking in the official party newspaper, People's Daily, in an editorial.

Plane Crash Toll Remains Mystery

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Bulgarian airliner made an unscheduled landing in foul weather at Bratislava Thursday and then crashed at dusk in the fog-shrouded Carpathians soon after takeoff on an attempt to resume its flight, the CTK news agency reported. The Czechoslovak agency at first said there were 84 persons aboard and no survivors but later reported an unknown number of passengers were believed to have stayed in Bratislava rather than risk the flight on to East Berlin. Unconfirmed reports said the passengers were mostly Hungarians but that there was also a Frenchman and one German citizen and apparently some Czechoslovaks. The cause of the crash was not immediately known but flight conditions along the route were unfavorable. Czechoslovak authorities said the only immediately available copy of the passenger list was unreadable. Unconfirmed reports in Vienna said an East European ambassador to East Germany and a Bulgarian opera singer were among the victims. The Soviet-made Ilyushin-18 turboprop was reported on a regular flight from Sofia to East Berlin, via Budapest and Prague when it landed at Bratislava airport.

Airline's Offer Put to 5,200

MONTREAL (CP)—Tentative agreement on a new labor contract was reached Thursday between Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists, whose members have been on strike since Nov. 14.

The settlement, details of which are being withheld, will be put to a vote of the 5,200 strikers during the weekend.

Air Canada said in a statement that, if the settlement is accepted, air services will begin within 48 hours.

Jordan's King Beefs Forces, Accepts Help

BEIRUT (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan began a massive military buildup against Israeli "aggression" Thursday in the face of attacks from neighboring Arab socialist states and bubbling unrest at home.

While reports in Beirut predicted fresh disturbances inside Jordan against Hussein's current policies which socialist Arab states have branded as soft toward Israel, the youthful monarch:

● Announced a draft of all men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster Jordan's army of 88,000 men against Israel's massive forces which can total 285,000 backed by 350 planes and 600 tanks almost overnight. The draft was described as "temporary."

● Accepted an offer of 20,000 fighting men from King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a fellow Arabian monarch whose policies have been denounced by Arab socialist states almost as viciously as Hussein's.

● Ordered his high command to set up immediate

Jordan Hit By Nasser

CAIRO (UPI) — President Nasser Thursday assailed Jordan for its failure to arm its citizens near the border with Israel to protect themselves from possible future attacks by Israeli troops like the one early this month. He also reaffirmed that his nation and its allies would choose the time and place for the decisive battle with Israel.

Egypt 'Grabs' Ford

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian customs administration Thursday seized all property and funds of the Ford Motor Company in this country.

The move followed a decision by the Arab League to boycott Ford, Coca-Cola and other American companies trading with Israel. The customs administration charged that Ford had refused to pay duties amounting to $144,000 on automobiles sold on the local market.

The customs authorities said Ford plants here were meant to produce for export only and that any local sales had to meet Egyptian customs requirements.

Those "extras" are the things which everyone except people on welfare, sick or without jobs are now planning to buy for a happy Christmas with their families.

The assurance that a

Why Things Cheaper in U.S.

Even Their Climate Better

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Economies ticked off on his finger-tips Thursday a long list of reasons why Canadian prices generally are higher than U.S. prices, while Canadian incomes are lower.

John J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, stood before the Senate Commons prices committee for five hours in what co-chairman Ron Basford (L—Vancouver-Burrard) later called a tour de force.

Usually without reference to notes or to staff members seated around the committee room, he gave senators and MPs a short-course in Keynesian economic theories and their past current and possible future application to Canada.

Most witnesses testifying in parliamentary committees sit down, but Mr. Deutsch said he thinks better on his feet. The former finance department official and vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, ticked off these reasons for a generally higher price level in Canada, so far as the shopper is concerned:

● The 1962 devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 92¢ cents in U.S. funds, while still giving impetus to Canadian growth, does mean a difference in the meaning of dollar when comparing U.S. and Canadian prices.

● Canadian tariffs are designed to protect Canadian industry and to encourage the establishment of a new industry. Their real purpose is to keep

Canadian prices higher, not just to provide a hurdle over which cheaper imports must jump.

● So far as foods are concerned, growing conditions are less favorable in Canada than in the U.S. Climatic conditions also are more severe in Canada for many kinds of business endeavors.

● The productivity of Canadian workers is about 20 per cent less than their U.S. counterparts.

● Scales of production are smaller. There is less specialization and smaller production runs than in American plants.

● Canadian skills and training are lower.

Mr. Deutsch was replying to questions by Senator Elsie Inman (L—P.E.I.), who said she saw prices in the U.S. which generally were lower than for the same products in Canada. Mr. Deutsch told M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton Kent).

Some Tricky Problems

MP Busy in Ottawa

COURTENAY—In a letter to Comox-Alberni constituents Tom Barnett has reported on the wide scope of matters which are brought to his attention. His report follows:

While parliament is sitting, the cycle of activity of a member of parliament necessarily revolves around what is going on in the floor of the House of Commons chamber.

Opportunities for participation in debate, if not taken as they arise, may be gone forever. But there does come intervals in the cycle when one can concentrate on other matters.

Such an opportunity was given to me during the recent protracted interim supply debate.

AMAZED

I still find myself amazed at times by the wide range and variety of matters which are of concern to communities within Comox-Alberni, into which the jurisdiction of the federal government enters.

Some time ago I was rather idly looking through a list of the incorporated municipalities of British Columbia which had come through the mail to my office. Out of curiosity I made a rough calculation and discovered that something like 15 per cent of the total number were within the boundaries of Comox-Alberni.

WHARF PROBLEM

There is the new and rapidly-growing settlement at Rumble Beach which, if it had a public wharf, could easily have goods and supplies delivered at its doorstep.

On the other hand there is Kyuquot where, after a somewhat lengthy incubation period, a nice new government wharf was built, but where the only freight service to the area says it cannot call.

Then over at Texada Island I am having investigated a report about the careless manner in which high explosives are being handled over the wharf at Vancou.

LONG DELAY

In Alberni there is concern about the long delay in starting construction of the Somass River-Kitsukula Creek flood control project, so I am endeavoring to see that the federal government holds up its end in this project which is a joint municipal-provincial-federal one.

The village of Tolino has been attempting to secure, for purposes of a gravel pit and garbage disposal area, some property which has been held under reserve to the federal government. It would appear at the moment this matter is proceeding satisfactorily.

But over in Comox many of the local fishermen are up in arms over what they consider to be most inequitable levying of side wharfage charges under existing government wharves regulations which are administered by the department of transport.

This is a question I have been wrestling with for many years, but which was greatly aggravated by new regulations introduced in 1964.

HANSARD BIT

As recorded in Hansard of Sept. 17 of that year I was saying to the minister across the floor of the house, "I have received complaints concerning these charges for use of the harbor installations at Comox" and was making suggestions which I felt would improve the situation.

In his reply to me at that time the minister said, "The regulations with regard to wharves are not, in my view, as the laws of the Medes and Persians but are subject to change almost without notice."

Mr. Pickett will be hearing more from me on this subject if and when we get to consideration of his estimates before the 30-day time limit for discussion in committee of supply expires.

Big Qualicum River

1,500 Fish Fans Salute Salmon

By DOROTHY BUTLER

QUALICUM BEACH—Salute to Salmon 1966, open house at the Big Qualicum River fisheries development last weekend, attracted an estimated 1,500 adults and children on Sunday, and some 300 on Saturday in spite of poor weather.

Richard Harvey, technician, and Brent Lister, biologist, were among fisheries department staff members on hand to answer questions, while fisheries protection officer Andy Skipper was in charge of traffic and checking the number of cars.

Visitors were able to see chum salmon, en route up the river to spawn, being guided into the artificial spawning channel, a major part of the development. Salmon could be seen preparing to spawn by "digging the redd," as it is called, making a bed for the eggs in the gravel.

Under natural conditions there is a high incidence of loss to salmon spawn as a result of flooding of the streams at the time of year when the salmon are spawning. The control flow and provision of artificial spawning channels eliminates this danger with a resulting increase in salmon stocks.

Mr. Harvey, in an interview said results of the Big Qualicum River development have been most encouraging to date. A month ago, returns of the second transplant were seen when 10,000 salmon returned to the river.

RETURN AWAITED

"We are now waiting for the return of the first chum salmon produced with the control flow and are just starting the fourth cycle of fish with the control," he pointed out. Some 3,000 chum salmon have been counted so far going up the river, and it is expected that the run will continue through December.

The Big Qualicum development is open to the public all the time at the site visited last weekend, and those who missed the event will have the opportunity of watching the salmon count up to the first of January. The count of steelhead will take place in the early part of the year.

If you're trying to get the most for your insurance dollar, the comments of Russ Jackson may help you:

Russ Jackson talks about doubling his money with London Life

Why did Russ Jackson—football player and mathematics teacher—choose a $25,000 Jubilee whole life policy? Russ gave his reasons in a tape-recorded conversation. Here they are—in his own words:

"There are not too many places where you can double your money as well as protect your family."

This one comment sums up Russ Jackson's reasons for buying a London Life Jubilee policy. It's interesting to hear him explain the steps that led up to this investment.

"Being in the position I'm in, I have a lot of insurance people who contact me and try to get me to take insurance policies of one sort or another."

"But I had known some people in London Life and when a chap here in Ottawa contacted me, I was ready for insurance and more than willing to talk to him."

Why did Russ feel he was "ready for insurance"?

"I was married in 1961 to a Hamilton girl, Lois. We now have two youngsters—a boy, Kevin, and a little girl, Suzanne."

"This policy gives my wife protection if anything should happen to me and would enable her to carry on what I think would be a fairly normal life."

Protection is one side of his Jubilee whole life policy. Investment is the other. Russ looked into this thoroughly.

"As many people know, bonds and investments are part of the Grade 13 Algebra course. Teaching this to the students at high school has made me aware of all the pitfalls and possibilities in this type of investment. I believe the mathematical background has helped a great deal in evaluating this London Life policy."

"My monthly premium is $34.58."

"I bought the policy when I was 28. If I live to age 65, I will have paid in a little over $13,000. And if I leave my dividends to accumulate, which I plan on doing, then this policy can be worth over $31,000."

"This would be double the amount I would have paid in premiums."

(Note: the $31,000 figure Russ mentions above is made up of $13,600 guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends. These dividends are based on the current dividend scale. While they are not guaranteed, London Life has had an outstanding record of dividend payments. Dividends allotted to owners of London Life profit-sharing policies for 1965 exceed $29 million.)

"I have to admit it's a long-term investment—you're not going to make a lot of money quickly—but the protection that you get with it makes it extremely attractive."

London Life insurance is flexible. Here are three of the choices Russ will have when he reaches age 65:

- He can continue to pay premiums on his $25,000 policy and continue to build savings.
- He can withdraw his $31,000 or so as a lump sum.
- He can use his savings to provide an annuity for life or for a set number of years.

Russ talked briefly about one other feature of his insurance program:

"I also have what is known as income continuance. This extends through to May of 1984, and guarantees Lois—if anything happens to me between now and 1984—$200 a month, every month, until that date in '84. The purpose of this is to guarantee my children—who are very young now—the chance of going to college."

(This income would be in addition to the $25,000 provided by Russ' Jubilee policy.)

Russ Jackson's story is not unusual. Today, most young men know they need insurance to protect their families. Many of them are discovering they can also double their money with London Life. A representative of the Company can show you how.

Ambulance Critic Defends Charges

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Bob Dubbin, the battling longshoreman who has been fighting for a change in the ambulance system in Port Alberni, is angry over a newspaper report which, Mr. Dubbin says, "implies that my assertions to city council were incorrect and my motives questionable."

Mr. Dubbin produced the article, published by a mid-island newspaper, and pointed out statements he considered unjustified and incorrect.

"First of all, this young man has accepted as accurate verbal reports of my presentation to city council, without checking his facts," Mr. Dubbin claimed.

"Whoever told him that I claimed none of the drivers had first aid training? Several depositions said it appeared the attendants on duty when those particular incidents occurred, had no first aid training. But my statement was that none of the drivers had valid first aid certificates."

He stressed the word "valid."

HOLDS TRUE

"And this statement still holds true, in spite of Mr. Berbeck's statements that he has had a great deal of training."

He noted that ambulance attendant Berbeck, in a story carried by the Colonist, agreed that of his many certificates, the most recent had expired in 1962 and had not been renewed.

"I have checked and rechecked with the St. John's officials," Mr. Dubbin stated, "and they confirm that none of those about whom I enquired has certificates that are valid at this time."

Mr. Dubbin also contends the fact that Mr. Berbeck was able to prove he had been trained in oxygen therapy, is no proof that one of Mr. Dubbin's depositions was erroneous, as the article also claimed.

"One statement was made that particular call did not know how to administer oxygen. No one ever said or implied that Mr. Berbeck was the attendant in question."

SHOWN HOW?

"But I defy the writer of the offending article, or anyone else, to disprove the claim that, on at least one occasion, the fire chief had to show the attendant how to use the oxygen equipment," Mr. Dubbin went on.

"Thirdly, the article goes into a long tirade about people being emotionally involved, going into lurid details about the agonies suffered by relatives while they wait for the ambulance to arrive, making minutes seem like hours. The implication is that I and all my supporters are emotional and irrational," Mr. Dubbin contended.

FEELS ANGER

"You're darn right, I'm emotionally involved, but anger, frustration and disgust are the emotions I feel."

"And I believe people ought to be emotionally involved at least to the point where they are willing to take a stand and try and do something when it seems to them it is right and necessary, as I have done."

ANNOUNCE

Mr. Dubbin also expressed his annoyance at suggestions made that he had created a "storm in a teacup," whose end result might possibly result in leaving the Valley devoid of ambulance service if all the drivers followed Mr. Berbeck's example and quit.

"I don't believe such a situation would be allowed to exist for one minute," Mr. Dubbin declared. "There are others here who have offered to take over the service. Or city council might decide to apply the current heavy subsidy to cost of extra men, and set up the ambulance at the fire hall right away."

BRUSHED OFF

Mr. Dubbin brushed off the conclusion drawn in the article that he had failed to check the depositions carefully before presenting them.

"What does he think I did in the three weeks between council meetings?" was his comment.

Courses Lag By Logs

LAKE COWICHAN — A slowdown in the logging industry has deterred many would-be night students.

"We have noticed the economic resource has hit us. People are canner with their money," said Mrs. E. A. Clode, adding those who would have liked to register for two courses only took one.

Mrs. Clode is substitute adult education director for her husband.

Magistrate Yields

NANAIMO — Magistrate Eric Finch wined when a 55-year-old lady told him she'd have to choose jail as, being an old-age pensioner, she couldn't pay the $25 fine for failing to yield in traffic. The dilemma was solved when she was allowed to pay on instalments.

Nicholson to Rescue Shipping Layoffs Gain Momentum

More clouds gathered on the British Columbia shipping horizon Thursday. But there was a glimmer of sunshine as federal Labor Minister Nicholson was hastening to B.C. from Ottawa.

Longhoring at Prince Rupert was completely stopped, and there was a partial stoppage at all Vancouver Island ports except Victoria, following renewed firings of longshoremen.

Added to those sent home were 10 crews of 13 men each at Port Alberni, where everything went smoothly Wednesday.

At Victoria Thursday, five gangs were called out to work two ships, and did.

BOAT OF PROBLEM

Over-all, neither side appeared ready to tackle the root of the waterfront trouble, a strike by dock foremen which began a week ago Thursday.

The companies have blamed the union for "conspiracy" with the foremen. The union has blamed the company for causing difficulties by employing inexperienced supervisory personnel.

Longshoremen actually returned to work Thursday after being discharged Wednesday. The employers asked for assurance the International Long-shoremen's and Warehousemen's Union members would do a day's work for a day's pay.

The firings began again later Thursday morning for what the Maritime Employers' Association termed "deliberate work slowdown."

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Nicholson is flying to Vancouver today. He said in the Commons he had received requests from the union and the companies to intervene.

The companies have denied there was any request.

DEEP CONCERN

In Alberni Valley, there was deep concern the current tie-up would affect others.

One supervisor on the docks estimated three days of inactivity could produce a pile-up it would take three weeks to clear.

But crew continued working at MacMillan Bloedel's Alulp operation, and neither the union nor management would explain why work ceased elsewhere but not at Alulp.

SHUT SHUTDOWN

Workers in other unions suggested the longshoremen don't want to force a complete shutdown of Valley industry.

The ones really getting squeezed in the middle are shipowners, whom it's costing anywhere from $100 to $300 a day to stand idle. And they can't do a thing about it.

The union and management also were involved in a procedural wrangle.

CONDONING CHARGE

The union wants the companies to start grievance procedures against those slowing down, but the companies claim the union is condoning the slowdown.

Ordinarily, a longshoreman who fails to perform satisfactorily may be summarily dismissed by the hiring company.

The cause of his dismissal is reported to the local union. Any grievance procedure which may follow customarily is instituted by the union on behalf of the member. The union takes it up with the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association.

Chief Dies At 75

PORT ALBERNI — Chief Richard Benson, well known all over the west coast of Vancouver Island, died Tuesday in West Coast General Hospital after a brief illness.

Chief Benson, who was an hereditary chief of the Ahousat, was 75.

Elders of his band described him as a capable leader, who in his time, did much that was good and helpful for his people.

Many cultural distinctions were attained by the late chief, among them the right to perform certain songs and rituals which were exclusively his, a mark of great distinction among our native people.

Funeral services will be held today in the United Church at Ahousat, at 10 a.m. with Rev. William Robinson of Campbell River officiating.

Mr. Benson left two sons and a daughter. They are Jack, of Ahousat, to whom the hereditary title descends, Donald in Port Alberni, and Mrs. Helen George of Vancouver.

Will the Culprit Please Stand Up

Will the person who thinks the National Pollution Conference was a "hoax," please stand up?

That was the suggestion Thursday from Dr. W. R. Derrick Sewell, assistant professor of geography and economics at the University of Victoria, who was also a delegate to the convention.

Earlier, a delegate who said he didn't want to be named because identification would endanger his job said the conference was a "hoax," and a "non-conference," and no mention was made of pollution problems in Port Alberni and Powell River.

Dr. Sewell said there was discussion of the problems at these centres, the meeting wasn't dominated by resources ministers and there were many medical doctors there.

The anonymous delegate said the opposite.

"If he thought he'd lose his job, he shouldn't have gone to the conference," said Dr. Sewell, explaining that from its inception the purpose of the meeting was a free discussion among all people involved in the problem.

Public Queried About Pollution

By JOHN MATTHEWS

Researchers from the University of Victoria are making the first study ever in Canada of the public's concepts of pollution.

They're trying to analyse what people think constitutes pollution, and what should be done about it.

The survey is being made by fourth-year geography students under the direction of Dr. W. R. Derrick Sewell, an economist-geographer who came to the University of Victoria this year from the University of Chicago.

The poll so far has interviewed 150 people in all occupational and age groups from Sidney to Esquimalt, in their homes and on the streets.

Dr. Sewell said he wants to find out just what the people's perceptions of pollution are, then he will match those opinions against their perceptions of what is good about their environment.

APATHY THEME

While the final results won't be tabulated until the New Year, Dr. Sewell said if there is a single theme for the opinion collected so far it's apathy. "We've asked people where they think there are pollution problems," he said. "Many have answered, 'Toronto, New York, Victoria' — in that order."

The pollsters also have been asking people if they have an opinion on the Buttle Lake controversy. Many hadn't heard of it.

POLITICAL LEVEL

Most of the decisions on combatting pollution are made at the political level, by politicians reacting to the public's sentiments, Dr. Sewell explained.

The survey will show what features of the environment appeal to people, features which they presumably would like to see preserved.

Indians Satisfied

Aid Confirmed by Laing

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Some of the Indian houses in the Yukon are worse than the work on the Cowichan Indian Reserve, Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing told his audience of about 40 people, most of them Indians, Thursday.

He said, "We have not done too well in this country but others have not done very well either."

He said Indians also must show initiative.

BAND SOUND

Mr. Laing made his remarks after a brief tour of the reserve here. He landed in the morning on Quamichan Lake and was welcomed by representatives from the Indian band, the city of Duncan and the North Cowichan municipality.

A group of Indian singers and a Sea Cadet band greeted him at the lakeshore.

Following visits to the Queen of Angles' Schools, the Tiny Tot Indian nursery school and the Cowichan Reserve, Mr. Laing received reports from band committees.

HOUSING BEEF

His visit was spurred by complaints from the Indians here about appalling housing conditions at the beginning of September.

Thursday, Mr. Laing repeated his earlier announcement his department is prepared to make a special grant to the Cowichan Indians to improve housing conditions.

Indian Commissioner J. V. Boys from Vancouver who was with the minister said 20 new houses would be built next year and funds will suffice to take care of the housing backlog by the end of 1971.

HIS PLEDGE

Mr. Laing said, "If there are Canadian citizens who cannot pay we still shall protect them from the wet."

Commissioner Boys said negotiations with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation are under way to provide loans for Indians who can pay.

Mr. Laing stated it is contemplated the Nanaimo hospital will be closed, "but we should have Canadian hospitals for Canadians and white people and not hospitals for white people and for Indians."

"The standards will be improved by just doing that."

Referring to a protest march proposed by the Cowichan Indians earlier if they could not get any satisfaction from the Indian Affairs branch, the minister said, "A march does not impress me."

"It impresses me to meet with you here. The energy could be expended for something better, for creating something here."

Speaking of housing problems on the reserve, Goldie Elliott said Indians are no better off now than they were in a savage state many years ago.

He said, "We have our shortcomings and no Indian will deny it, but it must be realized this condition stems from the fact that the Indians suffered much."

GREAT EFFORTS

He said great efforts are being made to make the Cowichan Indian Reserve a better place to live.

Commenting on Indian community planning layouts, Abel Joe told the minister after a professional town planner from Vancouver has prepared plans. It is hoped to build a modern village which will be equal in standards to surrounding communities.

CHIEF HAPPY

Following the departure of the minister by plane in the late afternoon, Cowichan Indian Chief Dennis Alphonse said, "I think what the minister had to say was very encouraging."

"I am looking forward to the band council having more responsibility in the future, not only so far as housing is concerned, but also in regard to our resources."

"I think Mr. Laing was sincere and he meant what he said."

Mr. Alphonse said after another longer tour of the Cowichan Reserve the minister was told by Grievance Committee Chairman Abraham Joe the band and the committee are satisfied now and the proposed protest march on Vancouver will be called off.

ALL WORKING

Members of the other three groups, Teen Town, drama and musical clubs, were doing the residential portion of the city.

"It is very rewarding to see the kind of support we are getting," said Mr. Quilte. "The public response has been very good."

Ten cars will leave town to canvass outlying areas Saturday.

ABOUT 60

About 60 canvassers will take part.

The areas to be covered are Kokillah, Eagle Heights, Glenora, Fairbridge, the unfinished portion of Cowichan Bay, Cherry Point, Cobble Hill and Cowichan Station.

Mr. Quilte cautioned the public against possible jokers. "Persons who are being canvassed have the right to ask for a letter of authorization and a receipt."

Minor Repairs Required For Teen Town Target

By MARIE CADORETTE

DUNCAN — A statement that the Frozen Food Market needs $10,000 worth of repairs was called "ridiculous" Thursday by Teen Town Adult Advisor Jim Quilte.

Mr. Quilte said a committee of five had thoroughly inspected the premises before signing the option.

"We knew certain repairs had to be done but not to the tune of $10,000," he said.

He stated the owner and the agent for the building had informed the group repairs were necessary.

"But nevertheless we inspected the building and we felt the repairs were of a minor nature," said Mr. Quilte.

He said he and another committee member crawled under the building and completely scrutinized the flooring and foundations, finding them "satisfactory."

A contractor was consulted and confirmed their findings.

Canvassing for the $20,000 building has been going on for the past week. Many old-age pensioners have made the rounds of local business establishments.

Members of the other three groups, Teen Town, drama and musical clubs, were doing the residential portion of the city.

COURTENAY — District 71 Electors' Association, well known for the watchful eye it keeps on city, regional councils and school board activities in the district, has presented a brief to the Municipal Amendments Committee. The committee sat in Courtenay Nov. 23.

No Acid on Sunday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver church will swing tonight with the way-out sights and sounds of Vancouver's first psychedelic service. Combining electronic music, swirling lights, go-go girls and poetry readings, the unique religious experiments is billed by its clerical co-sponsors as "a trip without acid."

Acid is along for the psychedelic, or mind-expanding, drug LSD. The CBC will videotape tonight's service at the University Hill United Church for presentation on the "Sunday" program. The service is the project of the Rev. Harold Mackay of University Hill and Rev. Jim McKibbin of St. Andrew's Anglican Church.

"We're trying to demonstrate you can have a trip without acid," said Mr. McKibbin. He emphasized that the service is a liturgical experiment and not intended as a gimmick. "I'm concerned in unlocking people so that they might be free and more open to this world."

CHINA RECOGNITION: GRITS EDGE CLOSER

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada will consider formal recognition of Red China if attempts to get that country into the United Nations fail, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday night.

"It may not only be a question of Canada recognizing Communist China, it may be a question of Communist China recognizing Canada," he said in a major foreign policy statement.

Earlier in the day Mr. Pearson nodded affirmatively when New Democrat leader Frank Howard (Skeena) asked:

"Would this government be willing to approach the government of the Peoples' Republic of China to see whether we might not have a two-China policy in so far as the exchange of diplomats between ourselves and that country is concerned?"

The prime minister's statement—particularly the vigor with which he made it—seemed to go closer than ever before to announcing a policy of recognition of the Communist regime.

It came at the end of his speech in reply to a question from New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Pearson said Canada could recognize China in one of two ways: voting for her admission to the United Nations, or bilateral negotiation.

"If this is impossible at present (in the UN) and we make no progress on this score, then we have to consider the other form of recognition," he said. "That is all I should like to say about it at the present time."

However it could still be at least a year before recognition of Mao Tse-tung's regime takes place, because it could be that long before the UN disposes of an Italian suggestion to set up a special committee to study the problem.

It is understood Canada will vote for the Italian resolution if another more progressive one does not appear to have a chance of being adopted.

'Playing Politics'

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault Thursday accused Vancouver Mayor Bill Rathle of playing politics in publicly supporting attorney-general Robert Bonner in Monday's byelection in the Cariboo. (See also Page 6).

Mr. Rathle, Liberal candidate who was defeated by Mr. Bonner in Vancouver Point Grey in the 1963 general election, Wednesday sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, urging Cariboo voters to support Mr. Bonner in next week's byelection.

Peking Rejects Canada's Plan

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China rejected today Canada's two-Chinas proposal to seat Peking in the United Nations. Under the Canadian plan Nationalist China would remain in the UN. "This is nothing but a revival of the U.S. imperialist plot to create two Chinas and such a plot will never succeed," said Peking, in the official party newspaper, People's Daily, in an editorial.

Plane Crash Toll Remains Mystery

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, citizen and apparently some Czechoslovak. The cause of the crash was not immediately known but flight conditions along the route were unfavorable. Czechoslovak authorities said the only immediately available copy of the passenger list was unavailable. Unconfirmed reports in Vienna said an East European ambassador to East Germany and a Bulgarian opera singer were among the victims. The Soviet-made Ilyushin-18 turboprop was reported on a regular flight from Sofia to East Berlin, via Budapest and Prague when it landed at Bratislava airport. Unconfirmed reports said the passengers were mostly Hungarians but that there was also a Frenchman and one German.

Airline's Offer Put to 5,200

MONTREAL (CP)—Tentative agreement on a new labor contract was reached Thursday between Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists, whose members have been on strike since Nov. 14.

The settlement, details of which are being withheld, will be put to a vote of the 5,200 strikers during the weekend.

Air Canada said in a statement that, if the settlement is accepted, air services will begin within 48 hours.

Jordan's King Beefs Forces, Accepts Help

BEIRUT (UPI)—King Hussein of Jordan began a massive military buildup against Israeli "aggression" Thursday in the face of attacks from neighboring Arab socialist states and bubbling unrest at home.

While reports in Beirut predicted fresh disturbances inside Jordan against Hussein's current policies which socialist Arab states have branded as soft toward Israel, the youthful monarch:

● Announced a draft of all men between the ages of 18 and 40 to bolster Jordan's army of 68,000 men against Israel's massive forces which can total 265,000 backed by 350 planes and 600 tanks almost overnight. The draft was described as "temporary."

● Accepted an offer of 20,000 fighting men from King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a fellow Arab monarch whose policies have been denounced by Arab socialist states almost as viciously as Hussein's.

● Ordered his high command to set up immediate

Jordan Hit By Nasser

CAIRO (UPI) — President Nasser Thursday assailed Jordan for its failure to arm its citizens near the border with Israel to protect themselves from possible future attacks by Israeli troops like the one early this month. He also reaffirmed that his nation and its allies would choose the time and place for the decisive battle with Israel.

Egypt 'Grabs' Ford

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian customs administration Thursday seized all property and funds of the Ford Motor Company in this country.

The move followed a decision by the Arab League to boycott Ford, Coca-Cola and other American companies trading with Israel.

The customs administration charged that Ford had refused to pay duties amounting to $1,846,000 on automobiles sold on the local market.

The customs authorities said Ford plants here were meant to produce for export only and that any local sales had to meet Egyptian customs requirements.

500 Fund Grows

Enough for Tree, Now Trimmings

The 500 neediest families in the Greater Victoria area Thursday were assured of at least an additional $2.36 to buy Christmas "extras."

Those "extras" are the things which everyone except people on welfare, sick or without jobs are now planning to buy for a happy Christmas with their families. The assurance that a cheque for at least $2.36 will be going out to those families came Thursday, when the Colonist 500 Fund eased up to $1,181.30.

When the fund closes near Christmas, the money will be divided evenly among the 500 Greater Victoria families who need it the most. Most of the people who'll be

Why Things Cheaper in U.S.

Even Their Climate Better

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Economists or to staff members seated around the committee room, he gave senators and MPs a short-course in Keynesian economic theories and their past current and possible future application to Canada. Most witnesses testifying in parliamentary committees sit down, but Mr. Deutsch said he thinks better on his feet. The former finance department official and vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, ticked off these reasons for a generally higher price level in Canada, so far as the shopper is concerned: ● The 1962 devaluation of the Canadian dollar to 92½ cents in U.S. funds, while still giving impetus to Canadian growth, does mean a difference in the meaning of dollar when comparing U.S. and Canadian prices. ● Canadian tariffs are designed to protect Canadian industry and to encourage the establishment of a new industry. Their real purpose is to keep Canadian prices higher, not just to provide a hurdle over which cheaper imports must jump. ● So far as foods are concerned, growing conditions are less favorable in Canada than in the U.S. Climatic conditions also are more severe in Canada for many kinds of business endeavors. ● The productivity of Canadian workers is about 20 per cent less than their U.S. counterparts.

● Scales of production are smaller. There is less specialization and smaller production runs than in American plants. ● Canadian skills and training are lower. Mr. Deutsch was replying to questions by Senator Elsie Inman (L.-P.E.I.), who said the saw prices in the U.S. which generally were lower than for the same products in Canada. Mr. Deutsch told M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton Kent).
